Enter Mr. Raskob.
Real Air Service.
A Gentle Police Dog.
A Wicked Partner.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

THE Democrats are wise in choosing John J. Raskob for national chairman, fortunate in his acceptance.

Mr. Raskob, chief of General Motors' finance department, understands organization and, important in a national campaign, he understands money.

Mr. Raskob's selection will be misunderstood by some. They will ask whether big business, usually on the Republican side, is with the Democrats this time.

No such question is involved. Mr. Raskob, a Democrat, and an intimate personal friend of Gov. Smith, the Democratic candidate, accepts the national chairmanship as Gov. Smith's friend. That's all.

THANKS to the postoffice, this country is developing a genuine flying service.

At this moment American air service is established from the Isthmus of Panama to Montreal, as it has long been from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

POSTMASTER GENERAL NEW has let contracts for carrying mail by air from New York City via Albany to Montreal, and from Key West, Fla., to the Panama Canal Zone.

Our air service southbound is 1,640 miles long.

Later the southern route will be extended to Guatemala, Salvador and farther south.

Postmaster General New, President Coolidge and particularly our air development are to be congratulated.

A POLICE dog "very gentle with children" suddenly changed its mind and savagely bit two little girls skipping rope. The dog will be examined for rabies.

EVERY police dog is about 50 per cent as dangerous as a wolf. If owners, instead of being allowed by the law "immunity for the first bite," were put in jail for six months as soon as a dog bit anybody, there would be few police dogs wandering around.

IN Senator Reed, of Missouri, Gov. Smith will have the well-known "wicked partner."

The Governor will be mild and gentle, cousin of "Alphonse and Gaston," in his political campaign. The wicked partner Reed will lash out and smash out, and do it thoroughly.

PERHAPS Herbert Hoover will find himself with a few wicked partners before the campaign is over, some even more wicked than he would like them.

TROUT raise their fins to bless President Coolidge, whose doctor investigated sickness of the trout near the Coolidge lodge.

The little trout were too weak to eat, the big ones had swollen necks. Col. Coupal, able physician, put three drops of iodine in the little fishes' tank, five drops in the big trout tank. Immediately the little fishes dashed at their food, and big trout necks stopped swelling.

THE trout had goitre, an indication of insufficient iodine. One city in New York state, putting iodine in its drinking water supply, diminished its many cases of goitre by 80 per cent. This annoys those that don't like medicine, but it diminishes goitre.

IN a few days Herbert Hoover, who never ran for office before, will be talking with President Calvin Coolidge, who has run for office about 20 times—without being beaten.

Mr. Hoover ought to get excellent advice from Mr. Coolidge on "how to win."

CHICAGO'S Federal Reserve raised the discount rate to discourage little fellows that gamble on margin. Call money went to 7 per cent. The little fellows decided that the big men meant business and Wall Street had an unpleasant day, what with a national campaign and so on.

BUT this is another day. You can never tell what will happen. To discourage a 1928 stock speculator seems to be like trying to keep a squirrel on the ground.

CUSTO TOPS 675 BOY GOLFERS

SCORES 68 IN HEARST TROPHY BATTLE

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER

Joseph Custo, an 18-year-old youth who came to Pittsburgh within the last year, scored a brilliant 68 to pace the first wave of finishers in the junior division in The Sun-Telegraph's first annual West Penn amateur junior and sub-junior golf tournament for the William Randolph Hearst trophy, at the Schenley Park public links today. Joseph Delnachio paced the sub-junior division with a fine 76.

That the record-breaking field of 675, the biggest in junior competition in the history of the sport, would produce a winner worthy of national championship consideration was indicated by the caliber of the leader and the brilliance of his score. Custo, who established an intimate acquaintance with golf in his infancy, starred in national tournament competition as a member of the Buffalo public links team in 1926 when only 16 years, and last year he was the ace of the Cleveland public links team that fought for a national championship.

TWO OVER PAR

Custo's 68 for the 18-hole round represented two over par, and only a mediocre 5 on the first hole kept him from equaling perfect figures. An eagle 2 on the difficult tenth hole, where he drove almost 300 yards, was the highlight of his round.

His card:
Out ...... 5 3 4 4 3 4 4 5 4—36
In .... 2 4 4 4 3 3 4 4 4—32—68

Clicking off a faultless 33 coming home after going out in 37, Michael Buysura moved into the runner-up position with a sterling 70. A few slips on the greens on the first nine kept Buysura from displacing Custo as the leader. His card:
Out ....4 5 4 5 3 4 4 6 3—37
In ....3 4 3 3 3 4 4 4 5—33—70

Stanley August, Conrad Dodson and W. Ames were tied for third

B. & O. STATION VOTE FAVORS HOOVER

Commuters and trainmen at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Station spent a busy day yesterday around The Sun-Telegraph's straw vote machine, expressing their preference for President as between Hoover and Smith. An early reading of the returns showed Hoover with 146 votes and Smith with 108. Wilkinsburg continued to upset the downtown Smith odds, and as a final gesture added seven extra ones as the polls closed for the day.

Just where the women stand on the Hoover-Smith question is uncertain from a close watch of the voting machines. There seems to be about as much enthusiasm among the gentler sex for the voting business as there is among the men.

TOO HOT TO VOTE

However, the excessive heat of yesterday and "uesday cut down the figures to a considerable extent. At times yesterday it appeared just a trifle too much exertion to operate the votirg m chine, although there is precious little physical exertion required. At that, the total votes in The "un-Telegraph's straw campaign runs well over 27,000 to date.

MINE RAIL RATES CUT

International News Service

WASHINGTON, July 12.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today held that freight rates on bituminous coal, from producing fields in Pennsylvania and West Virginia to destinations in northern New York, were unreasonable and ordered the railroads serving those fields to put a new scale of rates into effect on or before October 10.

The new scale from the Clearfield district includes:

Syracuse, $2.85 per ton; Oswego, $2.98; Corning, $2.59; Ithaca, $2.85; Hornell, $2.49; Geneva, $2.85; Binghampton, $2.85; Glens Falls, $3.55; Ticonderoga, $3.85.

At the same time the commission held that freight rates on anthracite coal from Pennsylvania mines to Glens Falls and various other towns in New York were unreasonable and prescribed a new rate schedule.

Complete Novel Free

"The Show Boat," famous atmospheric novel of the Mississippi, will be given away free with next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph.

This great novel by Edna Ferber will begin a new feature—a regular, every-Sunday publication of the most popular and best selling novels of recent times.

"Show Boat" has been acclaimed throughout the world, with editions running into the hundreds of thousands. It has attracted attention of stage and screen. Not only was this unusual story accepted whole-heartedly by book critics as an innovation and by book readers as a masterpiece, but it has been dramatized and set to music, and the operatta is enjoying a long run in New York.

The story pictures the life of the Mississippi, Ohio, Monongahela and connecting rivers during the gay '70's, and in later years. Through its pages step the people who made the mighty Father of Waters a stream of gorgeous life, color, beauty and tragedy. The people in the book are real people that you will understand—especially Cap'n Andy, the nervous, lovable little pilot captain, owner and master showman of Louisiana bayous and Iowa and Kentucky, Illinois and Ohio river towns.

The pageantry of southern planter and Negro life; the stuff that dreams and romance are made of, live in this story. Read it in Sunday's Sun-Telegraph.

BANDITS LOCK 2 IN ICE DEPOT, TAKE $390

Two bandits robbed two employes of the Consolidated Ice Company of $390 in a branch office in Watt street today, locked them in, and then escaped in the collector's car.

Thomas Morris, collector, and Patrick Trader, manager of the "cash - and - carry" branch, were counting receipts at noon when the robbers, armed, entered, held them up, seized a bag of money and backed out.

They failed to get $200 in Morris' pocket.

"We'll notify the company to let you out," one of the bandits called back as he locked the two victims in.

Then the pair leaped into a small truck used by Morris in making the rounds of branch stations and drove away.

SHIP TAKES 3 OFF ICE

International News Service.

MOSCOW, July 12.—Survivors of the Malmgren party of the Nobile Polar expedition, who have been lost amid the northern ice floes since May 25, have been rescued by the Russian ice breaker Krassin, the ship reported by radio today.

Prof. Finn Malmgren, leader of the group of three men, was dead from illness and exposure.

DEAD FROM COLD

The two survivors were rescued and Malmgren's body taken off the ice at 6:40 a. m., Greenwich mean time, today, the captain of the steamship reported by radio. Capt. A. Mariano and Capt. Filippo Zappi, the survivors, said that Prof. Malmgren died as a result of the terrible cold and exertion a month ago while their floating ice cake was off Brock Island. Mariano and Zappi had been without food 13 days when they were saved. They were in extremely weakened condition from exposure and starvation.

The men had been located on a drifting ice pack off North East

Rap Mine Situation

INDIANAPOLIS, July 12.—(AP.)—With the situation in the Illinois mine district the storm center of debate, the policy committee of the United Mine Workers of America reconvened at union headquarters here today for further discussion of recent developments in the suspension of union mining in the bituminous coal field. Decision as to whether changed conditions necessitate modification of the mine workers' adherence to the Jacksonville wage scale confronts the committee.

Harry Fishwick, Illinois district president, it was understood, brought the conditions in Illinois to the attention of the committee. He denied after yesterday's meeting that there was any thought of revolt in the minds of union miners in his district.

"Conditions are very bad in Ohio and Pennsylvania mines," Fishwick said. "We want to prevent anything like that from entering the Illinois fields."

Several coal operators in Ohio and Pennsylvania have been operating non-union since the union suspension on April 1, 1927.

ORCHESTRA WINS IN BLUE LAW DECISION

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—(AP.)—The State Superior Court today quashed the appeal of the Comomnwealth, which sought to have a fine imposed on Pittsburgh musicians for playing in a concert on Sunday.

The musicians, members of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, had been fined $25 for violating the Sunday law. The Allegheny County Quarter Sessions Court reversed the judgement of the magistrate who imposed the fine and the commonwealth took an appeal to the Superior Court.

The orchestra members were arrested on warrants charging violation of the Sunday Blue Laws, and the court fight was considered test case as to whether the law could be applied to concerts on the Sabbath.

The decision of the Superior Court marks the end of the second legal battle to prevent the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra from giving Sunday concerts in Pittsburgh.

In May, 1927, following a Sunday concert, given in Syria Mosque, the Allegheny County Sabbath Association caused the arrest of eight persons, including officers of the association and a few of the musicians who had taken part in the program. They were charged with "unlawfully conducting, giving, holding and participating in a concert on the Lord's Day, which concert was not worship or work of necessity or public charity."

The defendants were George E. Benson, Richard S. Rauh, Elias Breeskin, Bert Floersheim, Wilmer J. Jacoby, Edward Speeter, Max R. Seifert, Israel Weinstein and Homer Ochsenhirt. In an opinion handed down January 21, Judges R. A. Kennedy and D. M. Miller, of the County Court, decided that Sunday symphony concerts do not constitute a violation of the old Sunday blue laws.

It was from this decision the appeal was taken.

POLICE GUN KILLS MAN

A Negro proprietor of a Homewood restaurant was shot to death early today when he struggled with several other Negroes and a policeman for possession of the officer's revolver. The gun is said to have fallen to the floor when the officer was attacked in the establishment and in the scuffle for possession of the weapon, it was discharged.

The dead man was J. Thomas Sutton, 48, a Negro, of 421 Rosedale street, owner of the restaurant at 7302½ Tioga street. The policeman is Sub-Patrolman Frank T. Caslin, 25, of 4210 Butler street, attached to the Frankstown Avenue Station. Caslin and four Negroes, who were arrested at the time, were turned over to the coroner today by Magistrate John Orie in Morals Court.

Caslin told his superior officers that he entered the restaurant and was walking to the kitchen to wash his hands when stopped by Sutton and several other men. The quarrel followed and the officer was manhandled by the men and beaten with his blackjack.

BREMEN IS STRIPPED

QUEBEC, July 12.—(AP.)—A detail of Quebec provincial police has been ordered to Greenley Island to protect the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen from souvenir hunters who already have stripped the craft of several of its parts.

Decision to send the police was made as a result of an appeal from Mechanic Thibault of the Trans-continental Airways who has been guarding the plane since efforts to fly it out proved unsuccessful.

Thibauld, one of the first men to reach the plane after Captain Herman Koehl, Major James Fitzmaurice and Baron Von Huenefeld landed their last march on completion of their trans-Atlantic flight told provincial authorities he had had trouble protecting the plane and had been threatened with violence by souvenir hunters.

SEVEN GOING TO DEATH WITHIN HOUR

EDDYVILLE, Ky., July 12.—(AP.)—Seven men in death cells at the state penitentiary here entered upon what they expect to be their last 24 hours of life.

All have been sentenced to die for murder. Barring reprieves, a remote consideration, they will be electrocuted between midnight and 1 o'clock the morning of Friday, July 13, tomorrow.

Three are Negroes. They will die last. The four white men, three of them little more than boys, will go to the chair first in an order yet to be arranged.

If court instructions are followed exactly, there will be hardly a break in the procession through the death chamber during the hour set for the executions.

Two of the white men, Charles Paul Mitra, 23, St. Louis, and Orlando "Red" Seymour, 21, Louisville, blamed "evil companions" today. Each was convicted of murder in connection with robberies at Louisville. The third, Hascue Dockery, 21, Harlan, Ky., did not deny the murder of two women and a man for which he was convicted two years ago in one of the mountain counties.

The fourth, Milford "Red" Lawson, 35, Corbin, Ky., denied the murder for which he is to die. He pleaded for more time.

Of the three Negroes, two refused to talk even to the chaplain. In solitary confinement, they were reported to be in sullen mood. The other joked about the electric chair.

STORM SPREADS RUIN; TOWNS FLOODED

WASHINGTON, Pa., July 12.—A cyclonic storm, which swept this area late yesterday afternoon, followed last night by a particularly heavy electrical storm, left much damage in its wake.

Frank R. Weirich, 43, 36 Shirls avenue, was badly bruised by brick from a falling smokestack at the Jessop steel plant here, the stack having been struck by lightning.

Barns on the Thompson Pipes farm, southwest of Washington, and on the George Woodburn place, East Finley township, also were struck. Hay, grain and machinery were destroyed in each with a combined loss of $10,000.

Trees were uprooted, derricks razed, crops flattened, windows broken by the wind.

TWO BUILDINGS HIT

WHEELING, W. Va., July 12.—(AP.)—Damage estimated at several thousand dollars was caused here last night by a violent thunderstorm. Lightning struck two buildings, and 15 automobiles were damaged when masonry fell from a cornice of the 10-story National Bank of West Virginia building. Besides the bank building, a greenhouse in the suburbs was hit by lightning.

John Berling, Chicago jeweler, seated in one of the machines, had a narrow escape from the falling bricks and mortar. Theaters, plunged into darkness, refunded admissions. Crops were heavily damaged.

TOWNS FLOODED

LIGONIER, Pa., July 12.—(AP.)—Swollen after a terrific thunderstorm last night, Mill Creek flooded the towns of Oak Grove and Waterford, two miles north. More than 500 chickens and some cattle were killed, cellars were flooded and a large steel bridge was torn from its place by the raging stream. Crops were heavily damaged, farmers in the vicinity said.

HAIL AT FREDERICK

FREDERICK, Md., July 12.—(AP.)—A violent half hour hail storm, accompanied by a high wind, centered over Frederick last night and extended not more than a mile outside the city and no serious crop damage resulted. The Masonic Temple roof and a part of the roof of the Evangelical Lutheran Sunday School were torn off, and it was estimated that one-third of the buildings suffered from broken windows, one building reporting 53 panes smashed by hailstones of unusual size. Numbers of chickens were killed and two greenhouses were riddled.

Carroll Creek overflowed the city park and flooded cellars.

For many years I have always thought of Pittsburgh as not only an art center, but a great art center.

Art has received great encouragement from Pittsburgh and in the Carnegie Institute and in many of the private collections there are numerous works of art of the very highest order.

Pittsburgh has made an important place for itself in the world of art and there is every reason to believe will continue to grow in this respect.

RASKOB BACKS SMITH IN WET CAMPAIGN

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP.)—Determination of the notification dates for its two standard bearers is awaited as the spark that formally will launch the Democratic party into the presidential campaign. With organization completed, the Democratic camp today found itself fully prepared for battle, having worked out in perfect harmony the difficult problem of selecting those to guide its destiny in the coming fray.

At a 45-minute meeting and without a dissenting voice, John J. Raskob, of Delaware, a leader in the business and industrial world, was chosen by the Democratic National Committee as its new chairman, and he was entrusted with broad powers in the mapping out of plans.

Hardly had this decision of the committee been announced late yesterday before Raskob took over with a positive hand the duties of his post. In the space of a few minutes he had appointed five vice chairmen, including two women: Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former governor of Wyoming, and Mrs. Florence Farley, national committee woman from Kansas; and designated a chairman for all of the subcommittees which will function in the campaign.

Further, in his speech of acceptance he brought to the forefront the questions of prohibition and farm relief as two of the issues that must be met on the voting line in the impending fight. In regard to the former he stressed the right of Gov. Smith to work for a lawful change in the dry statutes which in the opinion of the party's presidential nominee would be conducive to a change for the better in the prohibition situation.

This statement was greeted with a burst of applause. A few minutes before, Raskob had declared opposition to a mudslinging campaign and forcibly urged that party speakers devote their efforts to discussion of "constructive policies." He contended that to insure success in November the party had but to convey to the country the knowledge that the people of New York had of Smith and the people of Arkansas of his running mate—Senator Joseph T. Robinson.

TAKE THREE OFF ICE

Land on Tuesday night by Russian Aviator Chuchnovsky. After circling over the group the airman and his companions were compelled by fog to land on North East Land.

Learning by radio that Mariano and Zappi had been rescued and were safe aboard the Krassin, the flier today sent to the Kressin a wireless message stating that there was no need to worry about his companions and himself.

"We have just shot a big polar bear," said the flier, "and we have sufficient provisions for fresh meat to last for three weeks."

The commander of the Krassin had been apprised by wireless of the location of the Malgren party and the ship started in their direction, but was compelled to travel slowly becuase of icebergs.

The two survivors of the party of three were in serious condition. They had been drifting for days upon the ice in intense cold with death staring them in the face. They lived on greatly reduced rations of concentrated food, which they carried when they set out from the "Nobile floe" on May 25, after the crash of the dirigible Italia, to seek land.

It was the irony of fate that Malmgren, whose hardihood and knowledge of Arctic conditions were expected to pull him through to safety, was the one member of the group to die.

The first radiogram from the Krassin gave no details, but it is presumed that the men are being taken to port—probably the nearest available port on the coast of North East Land.

Malmgren and his two companions had virtually been given up as dead, although Gen. Nobile, in a recent interview, said he felt positive they would be found alive.

Later wireless advices to the Russian Nobile relief committee giving details of the dramatic rescue.

When Prof. Malmgren's companions, Capt. A. Mariano and Capt. Filippo Zappi, were carried aboard the Krassin they fell upon their knees before Capt. Samoyolovich, master of the ship, sobbing with joy and calling upon heaven to shower its blessings upon the brave seaman.

Mariano's legs are frozen. He is in a serious condition, as it is feared that gangrene may set in.

Zappi said that Prof. Malmgren had died a month ago, but that his body had been kept in hope that they would be rescued and it could be given a Christian burial. It was frozen stiff when taken aboard the Krassin.

The members of the Malmgren party suffered the utmost agonies of body and mind. Death from starvation and exposure faced them continuously as they drifted in the desolate Arctic Sea, the only sound being the grinding of the ice fields and the crash of colliding bergs.

They were so weak and their movements were so hampered that they had difficulty in getting enough exercise to keep from freezing to death. When they left the Nobile party on May 25 to seek the coast of North East Land or Foyne Island the men carried what they thought was enough concentrated food—chiefly pemmican—for 45 days. They had expected to reach land in a few days—a week at the utmost.

In attempting to cross to the coast line they began traversing a floe that was detached by the current and wind and carried into the open water. They found themselves helpless. They had no wireless equipment and their only hope was in being sighted by an aviator or a stray whaler.

Although Malmgren was a strong man, physically, and used to the rigors of the Far North, he was the first to weaken. After his death the other two were able to increase their rations somewhat. The only water they had was from melted snow and surface ice, which was not salty.

Day after day they scanned the horizon for a searching plane, only to be disappointed. Although in the last stages of weakness they struggled to their feet with two small flags in their hands when the Russian airman at last, after what had seemed an eternity, soared into view in the gray Arctic sky.

Chuchnovsky had been flying at low altitude over the desolate ice fields of the Arctic Sea all day Tuesday. Suddenly in the dim twilight of the Arctic night he saw a huddled group on an ice pack that might have been either human beings or polar bears. Two of the figures evidently had been aroused by the roar of the motor which broke the Arctic stillness with a crashing sound. Chuchnovsky was thrilled to see them moving. He dropped to lower altitude and was able to make out two men weakly moving flags to attract his attention. It was impossible to land, however, and the gathering mist was becoming too thick for safety, so the aviator had to sail off, after apprising the Krassin by radio of his thrilling discovery. Chuchnovsky had been able to make out the figure of one man prone upon the ice. He immediately suspected that this third member of the group was dead and notified the Krassin of his belief.

16 PLACES RAIDED

STRIKE IN BOTH BOROUGHS AND CITY

Federal prohibition agents conducted 16 raids in the city and outlying points in Allegheny county last night.

Among the places visited were Dravosburg, Clairton, Glassport, West Elizabeth, Coal Valley and Mifflin township.

Four raids were made in each Clairton and Glassport. In a raid on the Atlantic saloon, Monongahela avenue, Glassport, agents reported seizing contraband valued in excess of $1,000. Among the material confiscated were more than 1,300 bottles of home brew, agents said.

Ray Sands, 21, of 401 South Highland avenue, and Peter Manfredo, 22, of 1008 Webster avenue, were reported taken into custody by agents when the latter discovered an automobile at Fullerton and Colwell streets had 21 5-gallon cans of moonshine stored in the rear under a blanket.

Two barrels of beer, 561 bottles of beer and five gallons of moonshine were discovered, agents say, when they raided an unoccupied store in Pike street, near Fifteenth street. John Thomas, 40, of Pike street, was in the place, according to the raiders.

4 HURT IN CRASH AT BRIDGE

When Harry Ezolt, 28, of Monessen, lost control of his car at the north entrance of the Liberty Bridge this morning, it ran through a stream of traffic and crashed against an ornamental electric light pole, shattering the base. His sister-in-law, Mrs. Jane Ezolt, 30, was taken to Mercy Hospital suffering from cuts and bruises. Her husband, Augustine Ezolt, 35; Mrs. Anna Havavich, 30, and Mrs. Sophia Skair, 35, all of Monessen and Bellevernon, were shaken up. The machine was wrecked.

SHERIFFS TRY CANADA

END MEETING THERE AFTER RESORT RAID

CONNEAUT LAKE, Pa., July 12.—The Pennsylvania Sheriffs' Association ended its annual convention in Canada, away from any part of the United States where there was a possibility of another raid on convention headquarters similar to that which marred Tuesday's program.

The delegates left Erie yesterday for Port Dover, Ontario, Canada, where they spent the day. They returned last night. The final session was held during the boat trip to Canada.

The raid Tuesday proved very embarrassing to the delegates, according to Thomas Sterrett, Sheriff of Erie county. The raid was made by District Attorney Stuart Culbertson, of Crawford county, who, with a county detective, seized alleged whisky and arrested a bellboy.

CANCER CALLED WORST FOE

Periodical health examinations will save any man or woman who takes them from dying years before the time when the diseases of old age inevitably come. But of all the diseases which such examinations are needed to combat the most outstanding is cancer. Early diagnosis is the hope of the cancer patient. There is no other disease which compares with cancer in fatality if once it is allowed to get a good start.

The highest medical authority states on the basis of the indisputable official statistics that one in ten of all the men and women now living in the United States are destined to die of cancer.

Of all women who die between the ages of 45 and 65 one in five will succumb to this disease.

More people die of cancer than are killed by railroads, street cars, automobiles, fires, drowning accidents, mining accidents, machinery, poisons, homocides, and suicides, all put together.

The medical profession acknowledges that in spite of the best efforts to discover its cause and cure cancer has become the most important single menace to public health in all civilized countries.

The Pennsylvania State Department of Health says that probably not five of every one hundred cases of cancer are being saved today, and yet a very large increase in the proportion of the cases saved is possible.

How is it possible? Only by early diagnosis. The disease is very stealthy and insidious in its early stages. It always starts as a local disease, and in the beginning, or local, stage there is no general disturbance and not even much local discomfort. By the time that the average cancer patient reaches the physician the disease is beyond cure.

"Too late" is the constant and tragic refrain in cancer clinics, Accordingly the medical profession everywhere is doing its utmost to persuade people not to delay in securing medical advice in regard to any lump (especially in the breast) any irregular bleeding or discharge, any sore that does not heal, or any persistent indigestion.

Any of these things may be the outcropping of a cancerous growth and if such a growth is present then, as the state department of health declares, the only safety lies in getting rid of it while it is still local; and since no means is now known of accomplishing this through general or constitutional treatment this implies either the destruction of the growth by some agent known to have this power, or its removal by approved surgical methods.

The old idea that cancer is a constitutional disease and hereditary has no standing with present day medical science, nor does the fact that there have been one or two cases of it in a family put the slightest constitutional stigma on that family. The public is also asked to remember that not all growths are malignant.

There are literally hundreds of varieties of growths in the tissues of the body, some of them menacing, some slightly dangerous, and others highly malignant by reason of their rapid growth and development. In every case prompt diagnosis is of tremendous importance and here is where the person with the periodical health examination habit has the advantage over all others. Get that habit if you value health and long life.

AIDS ICE FUND AS MEMORIAL

One of those gifts that tells of heartache and sorrow and, at the same time, takes thought for somebody else's happiness is made today to The Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund. "In memory of Lois C. Keil" tells its own story of a dear one gone on into "the country next door." Surely no finer or more appropriate memorial could be found than that of giving health and strength to tiny mortals whose presence and well-being means happiness to their fathers and mothers. A check from an unknown friend of the babies adds another $5 to the fund and the last from Mrs. M. M. F., who wishes only her initials used, brings the total to $493.26.

The fund, as you see, is rapidly nearing $500. Wouldn't you like to be the one to carry it over that mark? Or perhaps you could help a bit? It takes only $1.50 a week to keep a Milk and Ice baby supplied with milk for one whole week.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS SELECT PITTSBURGHER

BETHLEHEM, Pa., July 12.—(A.P.)—Arch J. McQuilkin, of Philadelphia, yesterday was elected president of the Christian Endeavor societies of the state at the thirteenth biennial conference. Other officers elected included J. H. Pardee, Pittsburgh, vice president; Paul Marsteller, of this city, treasurer; Robert McClay, Philadelphia, intermediate superintendent; the Rev. O. M. Tressle, Philadelphia, Army, Navy and floating superintendent, and Mrs. S. L. Fletcher, Philadelphia, missionary superintendent. A large parade and mass meeting were held yesterday.

INVENTOR, FILM EXTRA FALL TO DEATH

POTTSVILLE, Pa., July 12.—(A.P.)—A bolt of lightning today was believed to have caused the plunge of an airplane in which Morris M. Titterington, inventor of the earth inductor compass, and Mrs. Bernice Gamble Andrews, movie actress, met death.

This theory was advanced by Charles Gilbert, on whose farm the plane crashed yesterday from a height of 1,000 feet. He was the only witness to the accident. The plane was a mass of wreckage when Gilbert reached the scene and its two occupants were dead. The plane had taken off from Curtiss Field, N. Y.

Titterington, 35 years old, was an experienced aviator and vice president of the Pioneer Instrument Company of Brooklyn, N. Y. His earth inductor compass was used by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in his flight to Paris and since then by other long distance fliers.

Mrs. Andrews was known as "Patricia Perry" in moving pictures in which she played extra parts for comedies. She was 23 years old and was divorced two years ago from Fred Andrews. She is survived by a son, Fred Andrews, Jr.

She had been learning to fly for the last two weeks under Titterington's instructions. He was in the pilot's seat yesterday when the crash occurred.

In Titterington's pocket were found two insurance policies for $5,000 each in which Mrs. Andrews had been named as the beneficiary. A bank book also was found for a joint account of Titterington and Mrs. Andrews.

SEEK NEW NAME FOR SEWICKLEY HOSPITAL

Now that they are building a larger hospital at Sewickley, for which subscriptions have been collected from people in the nearby towns of Coraopolis and Ambridge, the propriety of retaining the name Sewickley Valley Hospital has been questioned, with the result that a petition was presented in Common Pleas Court asking to have the charter amended and the name changed to Valley Hospital Association.

BEETLE SCOURGE SOUGHT HERE

Like fiction detectives, lacking only magnifying glasses, a crew of four men are to be seen here daily literally fine-combing lawns, delving into shrubbery, shaking small trees and snooping along hedges.

They identified themselves yesterday when they centered their activities in Schenley Park as detectives searching for evidence that the destructive Japanese beetle had invaded Western Pennsylvania. This little insect, which first appeared in New Jersey several years ago, is annually doing untold thousands of dollars' damage to fruit and vegetable crops, as well as to lawns and shrubbery in the eastern part of the country, and is advancing rapidly.

If the crew here, headed by D. E. Brubaker, of 140 Stratford avenue, discovers any of the little bugs, this part of the state will be placed under a quarantine.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture is co-operating with the Departments of Agriculture of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, New York and Connecticut.

The crew here is one of scores visiting farms, gardens, nurseries, produce yards and parks.

The beetle is a hard-shelled green bug with light brown wings, one-half inch long and about one-fourth inch across the body. It has two white dots at the rear of the body and five along each side back of the rear pair of legs. It has six legs and a short pair of "feelers."

In the eastern part of the state whole trees have been denuded of fruit and foliage by these enemies.

NORRIS SPURNS FARMER-LABOR NOMINATION

NO THIRD PARTY FOR NEBRASKA SENATOR

WASHINGTON, July 12.—(AP.)—Announcement was made at the office of Senator Norris, of Nebraska, this morning that he would head no third party ticket movement. This statement was made in connection with his nomination for the Presidency at Chicago last night by the Farmer-Labor party.

REFUSAL IGNORED

CHICAGO, July 12.—(AP.)—United States Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska today had become an unwilling candidate for presidency of the United States on the Farmer-Labor ticket.

Despite his reported refusal to head any third party slate, the Nebraska Senator was placed in nomination at last night's session of the convention. He was chosen on the third ballot, receiving 16 ballots to 14 for Norman Thomas, the Socialist nominee for President.

For vice president the Farmer-Laborites named Will Vereen, of Moultrie, Ga., a cotton mill owner.

While the Farmer-Labor party was going ahead with the selection of standard bearers, the Prohibition party, also in session here, centered discussion on platform problems. With adoption of the platform today, nominations for President and vice president were next in order.

DRY MERGER FAILS

Possibility of a merger of the Prohibition party and the Farmer-Labor group ended last night when both vetoed the proposal.

FUGITIVE CASE QUASHED

A move to return John Dixon Hall former head of the live stock division of the U. S. Department of Agriculture to Virginia as a fugitive from justice for deserting his wife was thrown out of Common Pleas Court yesterday. Judge Elder W. Marshall held that Hall was not a fugitive regardless of the fact that extradition papers had been issued for his return.

Hall charges his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Hall, of Rosslyn, Va., is persecuting him. He said he turned over his home to her and has arranged numerous conferences to settle domestic difficulties. Hall is a resident of Webster Hall and the representative of a western insurance company.

WORLD FLIERS SAIL ON LINER

ings en route to the airfield. Only the American consel's credentials gained admittance past dozens of heavily armed troops, but one degree removed from banditry.

In preparing to hop across the Japan Sea we rigged up a rubber aircraft and departed for Tokio at 4 o'clock. Conditions were excellent until we reached Korea, where we encountered the first of three intimate glimpses of disaster during the flight, when the oil started leaking.

Capt. Collyer turned over the controls to me, which was the lesser of two evils, and crawled out on the wings in the open and soon repaired the leak. Meanwhile I was voting him the most popular man in the world.

This crisis met, we next encountered fog approaching the Japan Sea and flew blind for an hour and three-quarters, never glimpsing the sea once en route to Japan.

A Chinese mechanic was responsible for the oil leak. He forgot to screw the cap on after fueling.

NEAR MOUNTAIN CRASH

As soon as the leak was repaired we sighed with relief, only to start up with the discovery that a mountain loomed dead ahead. Disaster seemed certain. But Capt. Collyer, with remarkable flying, jerked up the ship, which responded beautifully. We just cleared the peak, scraping trees!

Fog, rain and headwinds exhausted our fuel, forcing us to stop at Osaka, Japan, where we refueled in 30 minutes and hopped off for Tokio.

Darkness settled early, leaving only our maps and instruments to guide the way in a strange country with no good landing fields. After hours of flying in darkness we picked out the lights of Tokio, but could not find an air field, although we circled the city for an hour.

We faced disaster for the third time as our gas supply was within a few minutes of exhaustion when Collyer sighted the night beacon. We just barely made it.

We landed perfectly, although a few moments earlier we had become thoroughly resigned to disaster, foreseeing a forced landing, on the traditional soggy paddy fields, which meant almost certain death.

AT WRONG FIELD

We landed at Tachikawa military field and discovered hundreds, including army and navy officials, awaiting at another field, where it was impossible to land, due to the lack of guiding lights.

The wings of our plane were folded up and the plane was towed to Yokohama. We were rushed in an automobile to Tokio, where an elaborate banquet was given in our honor by the Tokio Asahi, the leading newspaper. The banquet was served in true Oriental style, with 11 fish courses.

The plane performed ideally throughout, bringing us safely through for a new record from the Atlantic to the Pacific, of five days and 21 hours across Europe and Asia.

We have had less than 10 hours' sleep since departing from Cherbourg. We sail Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Empress of Russia. Collyer is already in bed realizing a well-earned repose.

MANY persons are unhappy because they do not excel in some way.

They would love to paint pictures, or write books, or play a fine part on the stage or screen.

But they forget that they have a very great talent! The talent of appreciation and enthusiasm.

Without their support and interest the others could not succeed.

And theirs, too, is the wider, happier lot in life. They are not hemmed in by selfish interest, prejudiced opinions, petty jealousy.

The whole world is their art gallery, bookstore and stage.

The most gifted are often the most intolerant of another's talent. But the appreciator seeks and finds, enjoys, accepts or rejects, as he sees fit.

ROBBERS ENTER 3 PLACES

Three robberies were reported to the police this morning. A thief forced the rear window in the home of Fred Wissenbach, 2925 Beechwood boulevard, and stole apparel valued at $60. Burglars took $100 worth of jewelry from the home of Harry Parra, 117 West Ohio street. The Elsini Restaurant, 434 Fourth avenue, was entered, and an undetermined quantity of tobacco and candy taken.

6 AIR MARKS FALL

U. S. NAVY PLANE BREAKS SCORE OF RECORDS

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—(AP.)—Six world records were broken today in an endurance flight by the Navy flying boat XPN-12 type A-7383, carrying a load of 2,000 kilograms, at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

The plane, which took the air yesterday afternoon, landed at 8:38 a. m., establishing an endurance record for her type and load of 16 hours 39 minutes 51 2-5 seconds. The former record was 11 hours 7 minutes 18 seconds.

The second record broken was that for range for her type and load. The plane covered 2,150 kilometers, or about 1,350 miles. The former record was 1,525 kilometers, or 947 miles.

The third, fourth and fifth records embraced speed for distance up to 2,000 kilometers, the plane averaging a speed of 83 miles an hour, breaking the record for carrying loads of 500 kilograms, 1,000 kilograms and 2,000 kilograms.

The sixth record broken was that for range for a load of 1,000 kilograms, the plane traveling 2,150 kilometers against the former record for 1,000 kilograms of 2,000 kilometers, or 1,247 miles.

GREENSBURG LUMBER MERCHANT SUCCUMBS

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 12.—C. E. Rohland, prominent lumber dealer, died after a long illness.

SMUGGLED INTO U. S. SAYS ALIEN

Ivan Paulik, 24, native of Czecho-Slovakia, arrested last week by immigration authorities for illegally entering the United States from Canada, yesterday, at a hearing before the Federal commissioner, told a story of being smuggled in.

Brought across the Peace Bridge, Buffalo, N. Y., in a closed automobile, he said he was placed in a cellar and then brought in the machine to Pittsburgh. While one man tried to obtain $250 from his sister, Mrs. Louise Yarsky, proprietor of a confectionery store at 2711 Sarah street before "delivering" him, the other man, he said, held him prisoner, a revolver at his head. Paulik said he was released when his sister refused to pay.

Mrs. Yarsky, and Charles W. G. Jackson, 19, of Sarah street, a mill worker, were arraigned before the commissioner on a charge of conspiring to unlawfully bring Paulik into the United States. Paulik is being held pending a hearing to show cause why he should not be deported.

Now! meal time is a happy event

"IT is all so wonderful, I can hardly believe my eyes. When I think how badly you used to feel—didn't want anything to eat—perhaps sometimes a little grouchy and miserable, and just driving yourself by main force, I almost shudder. I know it worried you, too. You seemed to feel as though you were slipping. Then one day you brought home a bottle of S.S.S. and told me you were going to give it a trial. That was only a few weeks ago. Today you look like a new person. Your appetite is keen, your flesh is firm, and your whole being seems to radiate happiness and I am happy too, because you are well and strong again."

Loss of appetite only a symptom

It is a known fact that when one's system gets "run-down," they haven't the resistance to ward off diseases. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play.

Rich, red, blood builds and sustains

Your physician will tell you that lowered vitality is the result of an insufficient supply of red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there can be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

When you get your blood cells back up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, rheumatism, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again; sleep soundly; solid flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong; and your nerves become steady.

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED IN PICTURES AND GOSSIP ABOUT PLAYERS

Local Amusement Announcements of Current and Coming Bills Contain News of Stage Comedies and Films

FACES SEEN HERE -:- THOSE OF FOLKS -:- IN SHOWS NEXT WEEK

Dolores Costello, in "Tenderloin," a "talkie" as well as a movie, will be the Stanley screen feature next week.

Marjorie Dill plays a prominent supporting role in "The Captive," which begins a second week in the Gayety Monday.

Mabel Kroman is the author of "It Happened In Pittsburgh," in which she will play the lead in the Pitt next week.

Ramon Novarro will be seen on the screen of the Penn next week, when the featured film will be "A Certain Young Man."

Louise Quinn of the Nixon Players, whose play in the Nixon next week will be a comedy, "The Best People."

Norman Kerry Offered Job As Gloria Swanson's Leading Man In Picture, "The Swamp

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate.)

IF NORMAN KERRY chooses to run, and can complete his European engagements in time, he will play the masculine lead in Gloria Swanson's photoplay, "The Swamp." All Gloria's advisers, including Director von Stroheim, agree that Norman is "just the type," and they have cabled to England to ask him how he feels about it. Kerry has been abroad several weeks, combining business with pleasure by starring in a picture during an European jaunt. Whether or not he can finish up his contracts there and get back to Hollywood in time to begin work remains to be seen.

Latest reports are that neither Lillian Gish nor Henry King will have anything to do with the United Artists' picturization of "The Darling of the Gods." The new schedule seems to be for Edwin Carewe to direct the drama, with Dolores Del Rio as its star. As the scene and characters are Japanese, it is understood that Sessue Hayakawa has been approached to play in Dolores' support. If the plan goes through as outlined, many sequences will be photographed in the land of the cherry blossoms and rice cakes.

A long distance call from June Collyer in New York tells her friends that she isn't going abroad after all. Apparently, "Chasing Through Europe" will be more a question of chasing through Hollywood, for it seems that our friendly (?) neighbors across the seas object to the importation of American players to act in American pictures. June plans to rest up from a bit of a breakdown caused by overwork by vacationing at the Westchester - Biltmore. Director Dave Butler will jump across the pond to get a few necessary shots, and then both will return to Hollywood. Well, it's an ill wind, etc., for now Sue Carol and Nick Stuart won't be separated.

VARIETY NOTE IN BILLS

Today the seat sale opens in the box office of the Nixon for "The Best People," a comedy by David Gray and Avery Hopwood, which the Nixon Players will present next week. Harry Bannister and Katherine Wilson will have the leading roles.

"It Happened in Pittsburgh," Mabel Kroman's new play, will be presented by the George Sharp Players in the Pitt. Miss Kroman will play one of the principal characters and George Baxter has been cast as the floorwalker hero.

An attraction in the Sheridan Square next week will be Pressler and Klaiss, comedy team. The two screen features will be "Sally of the Scandals" and "My Friend from India."

Within a year after "The Captive," now in the first week of its run at the Gayety, was introduced to Paris it was presented in Vienna, Berlin, Budapest and New York. The company presenting the play here is headed by Marcia Byron, Bradley Page and Frank Elliott.

Ramon Novarro will be the screen attraction in the Penn next week in his new production, "A Certain Young Man." The stage bill will be "Main Street to Broadway," with features including Alma Sessions, comedy prima donna.

In "Tenderloin," the Stanley photoplay feature for next week, Dolores Costello plays the part of Rose Shannon, dancer in a Bowery cafe, and the story hinges upon the fact that Rose loves "Chuck" White, a swaggering young gangster.

Arthur Lake will be seen in the title role of "Harold Teen" in the Grand next week. Besides Lake, the cast includes Mary Brian, Alice White, William Bakewell and Jack Eagen.

Viola Dana, motion picture star, will head the vaudeville in the Harris the last three days of this week in "There Goes the Bride," a comedy playlet. Five other acts and Tom Mix, in "Painted Posts," complete the bill.

Now You Can Buy VESS DRY in a handy home carton—

SO great has been the demand for Vess Dry, the new ginger ale, that we have created a carton holding six bottles for home use. And at its price—30 cents—plus a small deposit for the bottles—there's no reason why this delicious beverage should not now be in every ice box in town.

Great for picnics—fine for Sunday suppers when the cold cuts need a sparkling, tangy beverage like Vess Dry "on the side!" In fact there's not an occasion when this pure and refreshing drink isn't a welcome guest.

Not to be judged by the price

Many are mystified by the high quality and low price of Vess Dry. But the mystery is soon solved when you consider that every penny you pay goes for the best of ingredients and not for fancy labels, gold foil and other frills that add to the cost and not to the quality of other ginger ales.

Try Vess Dry Today

Try a five-cent bottle of Vess Dry today and compare it with any ginger ale regardless of price. Just make this test at any of the town's better drug, grocery and confectionery stores or soft drink stands. Then you'll understand why thousands welcome this opportunity to purchase Vess Dry by the carton instead of by the single bottle.

How To Be Beautiful

by Maria Jeritza

Watch our Hip-Line

WATCH your hip-line!

It is there that the unwelcome pounds begins to pile up before we realize that we are growing heavier!

The flat-chested hipless feminine figure is no longer fashionable, it is true, but bulging hips are not any more popular than they were last season!

Physicians tell us that the average modern girl is slightly anemic—a fact hidden under the bloom of make-up. Also, it is stated, tuberculosis is increasing rapidly among women from 18 to 35. A hint to the wise is sufficient. It does not pay to reduce the hips by starvation methods. There cannot be lasting beauty without health.

Exercise regularly and systematically. Take a brisk walk each day. Drink an abundance of water and take a daily bath. Eat plain food, including fruit and vegetables. These simple age-old rules of wise living are, after all, the secret of lovely complexion and symmetrical, supple body.

One meal each day of fruits and fruit juices—nothing else—with possibly hot water to drink, is a potent means of keeping down the calories and registering what you should on the scales.

One reason so many women who sit at desks most of the day acquire superfluous pounds about waist and hips is the fact that they do not sit properly. The weight should rest on the full length of the thighs. The feet should be placed lightly on the floor, but without strain.

Self-respect and pride should straighten your spine. Avoid a sprawling posture with your shoulders hunched, your body too far from your desk and all your weight resting on one set of muscles at the small of your back.

In addition to a brisk walk of several miles, riding is an excellent exercise for reducing the hips. But you will have to keep it up for months to get results. Before your bath each morning roll over and over, across your rug and back again, across your room and back again, for five minutes.

Nowadays it is not likely that any woman wishes to add to the size of her hips. This can be done, however, by means of a fattening diet, moderate exercise, longer hours of sleep, and daily gentle massage of the hips with warm, perfumed olive oil.

There is no royal road to beauty. Normal exercise and plain food call for self-discipline and control. But, all things considered, the path to loveliness is a pleasant road to travel and it leads also to health and fitness.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

THE CLINGING OAK

THEORETICALLY, man is the strong, powerful, upstanding oak that braves the storms and defies the lightning to protect poor, weak, clinging woman from all the hard and uncomfortable things in life.

Theoretically, he goes out into the world to face the battle every day. But it takes at least two women—a wife and a cook—to get him up, dressed, fed, assembled and started in the morning.

HELEN ROWLAND

Theoretically, he labors tirelessly all day at the office. But almost any time you happen to drop in you will find him ready to talk golf while three or more women pound out his letters, file away his papers, answer his telephone calls and guard him from outside disturbance.

As a matter of fact, the mighty oak is a delicate orchid these days, who has to be shielded from all the tiresome and troublesome tasks of life. He has been pampered by women until he is as sensitive and as helpless as a prima donna.

The things that a man "can't stand" are too numerous to mention. They range all the way from keeping track of his own clothes to writing letters, from the "petty details" of office work to the horrors of spring cleaning.

Any woman who marries a man elects herself the guardian of his stomach, the nurse to his ego, the custodian of his nerves, the prop to his dignity, and the general property man in charge of his clothes.

He needs a woman to feed him, tempt his appetite and watch his diet, or the first thing you know he has wrecked his digestion and is laid up for repairs.

He may have to go out and "struggle with the world," but when it comes to struggling with the tradesmen, the cook, the janitor, the household budget or the children's problems, it gives him a sick headache.

He may have to stand the strain of "Big Business," but he can't stand a noise around the house, he can't stand being bored, he can't stand going to church, and he can't stand warmed-over foods, or being interrupted, or having his newspaper mussed up, or writing to his mother. His NERVES are too sensitive!

One of woman's sacred duties is keeping a man's ego bolstered up and re-charging his sense of importance when it runs down or something knocks it out of gear. He's got to have "encouragement" and "appreciation" to keep him in good working condition.

If all the women in the world should go on strike business would come to a dead standstill and men would probably start living on raw food or die of starvation. The harrowing DETAILS of life would be too much for them!

As it is, the "clinging oak" goes comfortably and sweetly through life, with some woman always to take the burdens off his shoulders, do the tedious work, keep track of his dates, find his shoes and tell him how wonderful he is!

AS YOU walk down the avenue and watch the parade of beauty which passes in kaleidoscopic review before your eyes, or as you saunter the beaches on these lovely Summer days and watch the bevy of beauties disporting themselves on the golden sands, do you ever stop to give a thought as to just WHAT is the secret of the American girl's loveliness?

And hearken—here's the secret! She's no hothouse plant, tended and watched over by zealous and jealous guardians, carefully tended and petted that when she's transplanted into the sunlight of the garden she wilts and withers. Not the American girl! Her whole life is an out-of-doors one. Tennis, hiking, yachting, riding, golf—all these give her the glowing loveliness that make her at once the envy and despair of all her sisters. She's healthy and happy! That's why she's beautiful—and there you have the secret in a nutshell!

Health and Happiness! That's the secret of beauty and of love, for one brings the other, and the combination of the two spells the loveliest creature on earth—The American Girl—bless her heart!

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.
U.S. Senator From New York

Wrong Food Gives Dandruff a Hold

OF all the diseases attacking the skin, dandruff is the most common. It is known to the medical profession as "pityriasis capitis." Pityriasis is derived from a Greek work meaning "bran." So you see the medical term is wisely chosen. "Bran-like scales of the head," is a term well describing the trouble.

DR. COPELAND

There are diseases attacking other parts of the body which are similar to dandruff. Multitudes of scales form. When they are brushed off, more scales appear.

A disease forming scales in the hair becomes doubly disagreeable. It cannot be dealt with as it can on exposed surface. The scales pile up on the scalp, cling to the roots of the hair, and produce a disagreeable "mess."

In dandruff if the scales are permitted to accumulate, there will follow more irritation and itching of the scalp. This makes an annoying symptom.

The oil-producing glands of the scalp are over-active in the dandruff disease. This increased activity, causes excessive oiliness of the hair and, in turn, it results in the development of more and more scales.

Wrong eating, especially of excessive amounts of fats, like butter, cream and pork, is another aggravating factor.

We hear a lot about germs. There are serious doubts about any germs being the cause of this condition. To say the least, the germ origin of the trouble has not been proven.

There is no reason why a male should have any particular trouble in removing the disagreeable scales. It is merely a matter of cleanliness. But it is different with a woman. It is a real task to wash and dry a great mass of long hair. A man can easily and quickly cleanse the hair and scalp. While he will not remove the cause of dandruff, he will have his scalp so clean that no evidence of the trouble will be noticed for several days after a good shampoo.

In washing the hair use a good soap. There are so-called "hard-water soaps," made to form a good lather with hard water. Wet the hair, work up a good lather, rub it into the scalp with the ends of the fingers, and then rinse it out. Having done this well, repeat the process. The second washing will cut the grease and take away the scales.

The secret of the successful shampoo lies in the thoroughness of the rinsing. There should be an abundance of water used, gallons of it. Unless the soap is entirely removed, it, in turn, will add scales to a dandruff-covered scalp.

A man who has oily, dandruff-filled hair should clean his head this way twice a week. I do not believe good soap and clean water will do the least bit of harm that I know that the scalp can be made sweet and clean by this procedure.

Whether a woman is to be relieved of dandruff depends on her willingness to give the hair frequent shampoos. The hair cannot be sweet if more than 10 days elapse between washings.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Friday, July 13

THE sidereal operations for this day point to the possibility of loss through deception, fraud and duplicity, especially in matters pertaining to new undertakings. With precaution in this respect affairs may thrive, although involving change or travel. Personal matters may bring much pleasure, albeit there is a warning against overindulgence and extravagance.

Those who birthday it is are on the eve of a pleasant and prosperous year if they will exercise every precaution against fraud and deception. They should also be discreet in personal affiliations.

A child born on this day may be talented and ambitious, but should have early training in the matter of straightforwardness and probity. It may lean toward subtlety and peculiarities.

It was office gossip

"Aren't you glad you don't have to take his dictation, May?"

"I certainly am! It's a pity someone doesn't tell him about "B.O."

He wondered why
he was so unpopular

... until he learned the truth about "B. O."
(Body Odor)

"YES, I expect big things of Adams," the president had said of Bill when he first came with the firm.

And no one could have doubted that Bill was headed for a brilliant future. He had brains. He was an interesting talker. He made a fine appearance. Everything was in his favor.

But somehow, Bill didn't get ahead. In spite of all his good points, people didn't take to him. The president himself soon began to ignore Bill—and everybody else just deliberately avoided him.

Bill worked harder—but it wasn't any use. Something was keeping him back. He didn't know what it was.

Yet behind his back, almost everyone in the office was talking about Bill—and what was wrong with him. "B.O.", they called it—you know—Body Odor!

Body odor now unnecessary

Business men today want their employees to be particular about themselves—as well as efficient in their work. Many a promising career has been ruined by "B.O." Socially, too, body odor harms us—often more than we ever suspect.

Of course, we can't help perspiring—it's natural, healthful. Even on cool days we perspire as much as a quart of odor-causing waste every 24 hours. And we don't know we offend, for our own sense of smell soon becomes deadened to this familiar odor. But others detect it instantly.

Purifying pores keeps body fresh

So the safest thing to do is to prevent odor—not by merely covering it up—but by removing the cause—with Lifebuoy. Lifebuoy is so delightful that millions find it a joy to wash and bathe with it regularly. Its mild and abundant antiseptic lather deeply purifies the pores, giving bath-to-bath freshness of body.

Fine for complexions, too

This same gentle, antiseptic Lifebuoy lather also purifies face pores—keeping the skin radiantly fresh and clear, glowing with health. It guards health too, by removing germs. "For every toilet purpose—Lifebuoy is best," declare men and women everywhere.

You will learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant clean scent, which tells you Lifebuoy purifies, and which vanishes as you rinse. Use Lifebuoy a week and you'll use it for life. Get some today.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

THE George Sharp Players will go on the air tonight. Their program will be broadcast from KQV at 6 o'clock. George Baxter, leading man, will be heard in a baritone solo. Mabel Kroman will give readings. Among others on the program will be Ruth Perrott, soprano.

Three Bach numbers and two of Mendelssohn will be heard during the concert by the Goldman Band, to be broadcast over the NBC System, including WCAE, at 9 o'clock. The first of the Bach numbers contains two movements from his "Brandenberg Concerto," the adagio and allegretto. The two other selections by the same master to be played are "Bourree" and "Choral and Fugue," both in original manuscript form. The Mendelssohn numbers will be the overture to "Midsummer Night's Dream" and the "Scherzo" from the same work. In the same program will be Dvorak's "Slavonic Dance" and a cornet solo for Del Staigers, the instrumental fantasie "The Student's Sweetheart." As usual, the concert will be under the personal direction of Edwin Franko Goldman.

the same program will be Dvorak's "Slavonic Dance" and a cornet solo for Del Staigers, the instrumental fantasie "The Student's Sweetheart." As usual, the concert will be under the personal direction of Edwin Franko Goldman.

Modern composers will be featured on the Halsey-Stuart program, an NBC feature to be heard over WCAE at 10 o'clock. George Gershwin, probably best know as the composer of Rhapsody in Blue, will be represented by "Song of the Flame," from the show of that name. "Imagination," from "Here's Howe," a popular success on Broadway today, will be another number.

In another note, tending more to the classical, will be Bratton's "In a Pagoda," and Nevin's "Gondolier," from "A Day in Venice." There will be a talk by the Old Counsellor on matters of pertinent interest to investors at the present time.

Sergt. Hare and Corp. Jones will march their Flit soldiers into headquarters for their weekly half-hour of music and merriment at 10:30 o'clock. They will be heard over KDKA. The song numbers will include "Low Down," by Sergt. Hare; "I'd Rather Cry Over You Than Smile Over Somebody Else," by Corp. Jones, and three duets, "Good Lookin'," "Flies," and "Blue Grass." The Flit soldiers orchestra will play a rythmical arrangement of Keith McLeod's tango, "Southern Skies" and "Bohemia."

THEATERS BILL 'KIDS' ARTIST

Patrons of the Sheridan Square Theater, East Liberty, were the last to see and hear Ad Carter, The Sun-Telegraph cartoonist and creator of "Just Kids" and the "Just Kids Safety Club," on one of his "busy" days yesterday.

Mr. Carter will appear on the bill at the Sheridan Square and also at Harris' South Hills Theater, Dormont, and the downtown Harris Theater each night for the remainder of the week. Also he will appear at two morning performances for children on Saturday—once, at 9 a. m., in the Grand Theater, downtown, and at 10 o'clock in the Sheridan Square. At the Grand, a preshowing of "Harold Teen," to be presented next week at the Grand, will be shown for the special benefit of members of the Pittsburgh "Just Kids Safety Club."

A special vaudeville program for children is being arranged for the Sheridan Square by Eugene L. Connolly, general manager, Harris Amusement Company. As both theaters have a limited seating capacity, the members of the "Just Kids Safety Club" will be admitted in the order of their appearance. Doors in both theaters will open half an hour before the performance begins. "Just Kids" buttons will serve as tickets.

Mr. Carter spent an hour Wednesday morning discussing the "Just Kids Safety Club" with Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh. At 6 p. m. tonight, Supt. Walsh's 10 children will become members at the superintendent's home near Duquesne University.

At noon Mr. Carter appeared on the program of the Pittsburgh Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon in Fort Pitt Hotel. In the afternoon he went to the camp of the Boy Scouts of America near Ambridge, where, in addition to giving a talk on "Just Kids" and the safety club, he autographed "camp books" for the boys until he had to hurry back to his engagement at the Sheridan Square Theater.

The "Just Kids Safety Club" now has 2,000,000 members in the United States and Canada. The Pittsburgh branch has 45,000 members.

FREE SHOW AT GRAND FOR 'KIDS' SAFETY CLUB'

The first 3,000 members of "Just Kids Safety Club" who get to the Grand Theater Saturday morning after 8:30 o'clock are going to get another treat in addition to seeing Ad Carter, creator of the famous comic strip. They'll see a pre-showing of the film "Harold Teen." It is all free. The picture will be shown after Mr. Carter, in Pittsburgh as the guest of The Sun-Telegraph, tells them all about how the club started and draws pictures of all the characters in "Just Kids."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Society Looks to Winter Season, When Marcels Stay Put, as Panacea for Torrid Days

ON THESE torrid summer days, it is rather pleasant, isn't it, to look forward into the fall and winter when no one will say "Is it hot enough for you?" Marcels will "stay put" and we will all look less like wilted lilies—and last but not least, there will be something interesting going on right here in town instead of Southampton and Watch Hill.

Naturally, much of the social activity next season will center around the debutantes. That has always been true, and since the list of girls coming out during the winter is longer than usual, all signs point toward an unusually busy November and December. Very few definite dates have been announced, as I have said before, but we are beginning to hear, one by one, about the girls who are going to make their individual bows during the coming season.

Harriet Wainwright, daughter of Mrs. Harris Ewalt Wainwright, of Beechwood boulevard, is one of the girls on the list of prospective debutantes. Her mother is planning to introduce Harriet to her friends early in November, this making the second debut party in the Wainwright family within two seasons. Florence, you remember, came out last November at a tea given by Mrs. Wainwright in her home. Harriet is a Thurston girl and she finished school at Dongan Hills, New York, in June a year ago.

Speaking of Florence, she got home just last evening after spending the past two months out in California. The first month of her stay in the West she motored through California with a party of friends, and since then she has been visiting Marian Bryce in Pasadena. Marian is the daughter of the Marion Bryces, who, you will remember, lived in Pittsburgh until about three or four years ago when they went out to Pasadena to make their home.

ANOTHER of last winter's debutantes is away from home just now. She is Elizabeth Nicholson, daughter of the John Hancock Nicholsons, of Shady avenue, who came out early last December. Elizabeth sailed for Europe in June with a group of friends and she expects to spend about two months there. She will return home late in August, I understand.

YOU will be interested in knowing, no doubt, that the junior James B. Lyons, who divide their time between Pittsburgh and New York, are spending the summer at the Ocean House at Watch Hill. They are planning to remain there until September, I hear. They have their two daughters, Janet and Adele, with them, of course.

SINCE the establishment of its scholarship fund in 1920, the Pittsburgh Panhellenic Association has given scholarsships to 14 junior women students at the University of Pittsburgh. The successful applicants are selected by the Pitt dean of women and two representatives from Panhellenic, the base of selection being character, scholarship record, student activities and all-around social fitness of the applicant. Should the student maintain a high scholarship during her junior year, while she has a Panhellenic scholarship, she is eligible to a scholarship during her senior year. The society already has awarded $600 in scholarships for next semester and in order to increase this amount will sponsor the performance of "The Best People" at the Nixon on Monday night. The scholarships range in value from $75 to $150 and are awarded each year at the General Assembly.

The CONSTANT FLAME

by Winifred Van Duzer

Rossiter Is Making Things Pretty Hot for the Booze Joints

IT seemed to her Kent should be warned. She might write him a note. A bold thing, writing to him, but she could do that.

Yet when she sat down at her desk she was overwhelmed with shyness. Kent might laugh at her; he might believe she thought he didn't know his job. Probably he'd forgotten her by this time; he'd wonder who one might be signing herself "Emily Day."

She laid down the pen.

CHAPTER XLII.

LATER on Emily knew that no warning she might have given Kent would have made any difference.

He had no illusions about Morrow and his crowd. Indeed it was quite evident he accepted their antagonism and like it for he seemed determined to wage his warfare in the open.

And warfare it was as the months went by, reflected and exaggerated as in convex mirrors by the Star and Item.

The first shouting taunts at "'Gal' Rossiter, Amateur Reformer," and the last printing triumphant editorials and commendatory letters from the public.

For the public was with him, on the whole. It wasn't a mere matter of putting out of business a few notorious resorts; it was the prospect of getting from under a boss-driven condition for which there had seemed no help.

Those who had been hopeless and passive under Morrow's powerful organization came to life in a slow, startled manner and stood solidly behind Kent; they still were doubtful but eager to help.

Mysterious messages, all of them sincere enough, but usually offering bits of quite valueless information, always were coming to him; many solid citizens went out of their way to shake his hand and give him a word of encouragement.

Emily took to watching Morrow's windows from behind the curtains of the shop. A constant stream of those she now designated as "henchmen" came and went; they gathered about the Judge's desk and talked through shut teeth with pushing, forcible gestures.

Marty always was there, scowling ferociously; she fancied him a sort of super-henchman holding himself in readiness to jump at the Judge's bidding.

The Star blazed forth the charge that "Gal" was converting the office of prosecutor into that of persecutor. And hinted that highhanders never long remained in public office.

And the Item, in black-face type, mockingly invited its competitor to prefer charges before the Governor.

There were weeks when both papers went into extra editions and sent newsboys crying through the streets, a thing never before heard of in Lyall.

Some who gave a grudging admiration to Morrow declared he had written his own "finis" by an error of judgment. It got around that on two occasions, once in shocked surprise and the second time in a towering anger, he had sent for Rossiter. And that the young official had returned his business address on a slip of paper.

Once Emily saw old Tim Nolan climb the stairs across the street and stand before the littered desk, a meek enough looking little man with his bared, white head and the shapeless hat twisting in his hands. She wondered mightily what words were passing.

Still she wouldn't have understood had she heard.

"What's on your mind, Tim?"

"Well then, Mr. Morrow, your honor, sor, they do be closin' me out. Me neat little joint forninst the r-river wear'rs a padlock the day. I'm tellin' that one 'twill be a sorry job, when himself hears of it."

"Hard luck, Tim."

"It is that."

"But you'll have to let it ride for a while. We'll get around to them presently."

The old lake-blue eyes took in the Boss; ran over the big, vexed figure in a sort of slow appraisal.

"Ye'll not be givin' the office till lay of, then?"

"Not right now, Tim. There's others kicking besides yourself."

Enraged by the speculation in the little man's stare he flung out, Hell, I'm doing all I can, ain't I? What you fellows want for a few lousy dollars? You'll be taken care of I tell you."

Tim left without a word but his very restraint was a question. The Judge roared for Marty.

"What did you get?"

"What would I get? You know that no one's getting anything on Rossiter. They weren't kidding when they called him Galahad."

"Sure about that, are you?" Nothing you overlooked?"

Marty's eyes gleamed with comprehension but he shook his head. "Better not, Judge."

"Everybody's got a weak spot. How about that dizzy sister of his? Husband's skipped out I hear."

The Nolan retired behind his scowl. When he emerged it was to say in a business-like way, "I'll look up the sister."

The warfare continued. It was made the subject of sermons in the churches; congregations approved the district attorney by rising votes. The town grew actively partisan; street fights were a frequent occurrence.

And Emily watched from behind the shop curtains, feeling sometimes a twinge of anxiety, sometimes a glow of pride in Kent.

Spring came gently and while hostilities still went on both sides were quieter. Kent pursued a watchful policy and Morrow's crowd settled down to make the best of a bad situation. Marty had looked up the sister but had found only gossip; nothing that could be used to tear down her brother's career.

There were those who said the Boss was losing his grip; certainly he was not so rough-shod as he had been. He seemed to have aged a great deal; there were new lines in his face and his hair had turned almost white.

Small, pinkish leaves were unfolding over the grape trellis. Kitten brushed them as she swung clear of the kitchen roof and dropped lightly to the ground.

Nearly a year now since she first had climbed out of the window this way; she was growing rather irked by it.

Of course there was allure in the adventure; stealing throuh the dark, the rapturous kiss of the man who awaited her.

Still is was beginning to be an old story; sometimes she fancied Nicky felt so, too. He didn't seem to mind any more when she disappointed him.

There was nothing missing in his greeting tonight, however; he gathered her in his arms, pressing his lips to the burnished curls.

"Such a long time! Weeks and weeks. Why wouldn't you come, Kitten-child?"

"Wasn't looking for trouble. You missed me, Nicky? Really?"

"Of course I did. There'll be no trouble."

But Kitten had no faith in that. Bianca Wickert had been quiet for a long time, but it meant nothing. The girl was haunted by the memory of gleaming dark eyes and savage little teeth catching a red lip. She shivered.

Bad Weather Conditions Battled

CHAPTER XI.

WE reached Halifax Harbor at 7 p. m., Rockaway time, which was 8:30 Halifax time. The first leg of the great hop of 621 statute miles was successfully completed. It had taken us just nine hours to do it.

It was very pleasant to me to be landing near the naval air station I had erected in the previous autumn. I was more pleased the next day when that station was able to be of some benefit to our expedition. We had made an early morning inspection of the NC-3 and found several cracked propellers. The base ship, the U. S. S. Baltimore, which had been sent ahead, had some spare propellers on board but no hub plates.

I remembered that I had turned over some of these hubs to the Canadians. Jumping into a speed boat I found them still on hand.

Between Cape Cod and Nova Scotia we had for the first time in history done some real out of sight of land navigation in a seaplane and had been successful. Another test lay ahead of us when we left Halifax with the following day at 12:40 p. m.

Soon after we got out of sight of Nova Scotia the wind drift indicator showed that we had had a sudden and big change of wind direction. If this were correct, it would necessitate a change of course of a number of degrees. Here was a real test of this instrument. When I asked Towers to take a sight on the water with the indicator he got the same result that I did. Luckily we had the courage of our convictions and changed our compass course accordingly.

Through Rough Air

When we hit land exactly where we hoped to, we knew that the first drift indicator had proved its worth. And I knew then that at last an airplane could be navigated without land marks. I was delighted.

As we flew along Newfoundland at about 5,000 feet it was bitterly cold. A lot of white objects began to appear below which I at first took to be a fishing fleet under sail. When I looked down with my binoculars, I saw that the objects were icebergs, hundreds of them.

They made a beautiful sight. I was getting thrills enough at the moment; but I wonder what they would have been had I known then that almost exactly eight years later I should be flying over the same area with thick fog covering everything, having flown all the way from New York without a pause, having still ahead of me a non-stop flight of 2,600 miles and with the lives of three shipmates and friends in my care.

Suddenly my head struck the top of the navigator's compartment and several articles flew upward out of the cockpit. I felt as if gravity were acting away from the earth instead of towards it.

We had struck a terrific down current of air which caused us to fall faster than gravity would have taken us. I was afraid that Towers was going to fall out of the cockpit. When we got settled again he handed me a note which read "roughest air I have ever felt."

Assigned to Dirigible

Soon we were gliding down into Trepassey Harbor. In a few minutes we could see our mother ship, the U. S. S. Aroostook, anchored beneath us and the NC-1, which had landed ahead of us, tied up alongside of her.

Up there on the dismal coast of Newfoundland, the director of aviation, with his rules and regulations, seemed a very long distance away.

Feeling that Towers and Bellinger wanted me to go on the flight, I had hopes that I might still be one of the lucky ones. But soon after our arrival Towers handed me a radio from Capt. Irwin which specifically directed that I should not accompany the expedition. My Nemesis was still on duty.

My gloom was broken by a strange diversion. Sudden telegraphic orders came for me to report for duty in connection with the dark horse of the trans-Atlantic flight, the tiny Navy dirigible, the C-5.

My duties would be primarily concerned with navigational methods and instruments of the C-5. I was further directed to do all I could for the C-5, in regard to navigation.

The C-5 was a fragile, non-rigid gas bag of only about 200,000 cubic feet capacity, or only about one-tenth the size of a modern airship.

Coil in Command

While we had been flying north in the big planes she had been in the air on a non-stop flight from Long Island to St. John's, Newfoundland, a world's record for a dirigible of this type.

I was reading the dispatch over for about the sixth time and trying to collect my thoughts when one of my friends who knew of my long series of disappointments over the NC flight said: "There's your chance.

"You think the C-5 will make it?" I asked him.

"Sure of it. As long as she has gas in her bag she'll stay in the air. You can drift over if you don't do anything else."

I didn't have the heart to bring up the point that if there were any adverse winds they would take us away from land. I grasped at this straw. Perhaps I would fly the Atlantic after all!

Further, Emory Coil, the one who had been in the hospital with me and read about the death of his wif and mother, had recovered and was now in command of the C-5. I had already turned over to him before I left New York all our navigational data and one each of the instruments we had developed for the big flight.

Now began a brief but exciting period for me while I nursed my last thin hope that I might still be in one of the aircraft to cross the ocean. There would be a fine chance to get some real scientific data with the C-5.

Two of the NC boats were ready to start, those of Towers and Bellinger. The weather was right. But Read on his way to Trepassey, where we were, had been forced to land off Cape Cod. Now he was waiting there weatherbound. The C-5 was just around the corner from us at St. John's. If I got away and aboard her, and she flew, there was still a chance that the miracle for which I hoped might happen.

At sea 50 warships patrolled the course the NC boats were to take. The press of the country was beginning to growl at the expense of keeping so many vessels at sea, now that war was over.

On May 15, the NC-1 and NC-3 were about to take off when a speck appeared in the sky far to the south of us. It turned out to be the NC-4. Had Read been an hour later he would have been left behind. I grabbed a boat and rushed over to congratulate him.

He had had a hard trip. When he had fallen behind us one engine had gone out of commission, then another. As the two engines left were not enough to keep the heavily-laden plane up he had to come down at sea. A sextant observation told him he was 100 miles off Chatham, Mass. With his good engines he taxied westward, reaching Chatham next morning at daybreak.

At least he had proved the seaworthiness of the new planes.

On May 10 the weather was reported still to be good. Read was ready. Our English rivals were not quite in shape. The great moment had come.

Planes Reported Lost

After three trials all the planes got into the air, led by the NC-3. A sharp wind cut down from the Arctic regions not far above us and the blue sea ahead was dotted with huge white icebergs. But the three planes bravely roared their way out into the unknown and were soon lost to view in a cloudless sky.

I hurried down to St. John's. I was very anxious about my friends. After a slow trip I put up at a little hotel. Just as I was signing the register I heard newsboys shrilly calling "Extra!" I ran out and seized a paper. In a glance I read the black headlines:

AMERICAN PLANES NC-1, NC-3 LOST; NC-4 REACHES HORTA.

For hours I went through great distress worrying about Towers and Bellinger and their shipmates. Of course the story of the adventures of my shipmates is an old one now. Tower's time of take-off had been 7:30 p. m. Until dark the other two planes followed him in column.

Towers climbed above the clouds to take advantage of the moon. About 9:30 p. m., the NC-4, whose running lights had gone out, came dangerously close to the NC-3 without being seen. At this time the NC-4 began to speed up. Read deciding that his plane did not do so well at the slower speed.

The NC-1 and NC-3 kept in touch until dawn, when clouds hid them from one another. From that time on none of the planes sighted each other. Star shells from the destroyers were visible throughout the night. However, at times the visibility was so bad that the flyers could not see the tips of their wings. Passing through rain squalls made the men sleepy. Towers used strychnine to offset this.

During the following morning Towers' rougher calculation put the NC-3 near the Island of Flores. He was afraid to get too close, lest he strike the high mountains in the fog that prevailed. As he had only about two hours of fuel left, he decided to go down, attempt to locate his position exactly, and take off again for his goal.

Unfortunately, the sea proved rougher than he thought. The NC-3 hit the top of a wave, porpoised to the top of another, and then slid down into the deep trough beyond until she struck a third heavy head-on blow that split the bow in several places, and she began to leak.

Luckily the plane's life was not ended then and there. As the radio ground wire had broken, messages could not go out, though reports were received. A severe storm warning was the first news that came in.

The first thing the party did was to rig two canvas buckets out as a sea anchor. These were secured to the bow, and by dragging in the water kept the damaged craft headon. After a bad night the storm broke with full fury on May 18. The wind began to blow 60 miles an hour. The fusilage then began to leak so badly that it took the full energy of the crew to keep her bailed out. Tower, being a good mariner, had oil put over the side, but they drifted so rapidly it didn't do much good.

At 9 o'clock a heavy sea carried away the left wing pontoon. With this gone it looked as if the NC-3 could last but an hour or two longer. The men took turns strapping themselves out on the end of the opposite wing in order to keep the plane from capsizing.

The second night came on with hope for rescue very faint. The plane was leaking worse than ever and had lifted off her original course, but they found that by manipulating the controls they could drift at an angle to the waves and wind.

Works to Land

To add to their misery, the radio operator intercepted a message that search was being made for them many miles to the westward. Toward morning they had hardly strength enough to bail. All were weak from exposure and lack of food, their sandwiches having in the beginning fallen into the bilge and become soaked with salt water.

Just as they reached the limit of their endurance land was sighted astern. It was the Island of San Miguel. Gradually they worked in close.

The NC-1 had an almost identical experience up to nearly the end of her vicissitudes. I am sure that during this past summer most of the ill-fated planes that have been lost had the same experience upon landing. They hit the top of a high wave and porpoised to the top of another and then struck the oncoming wave with a bang, and of course, being land planes, they had no chance.

Caught in fog, Bellinger decided to come down to avoid the mountains that might loom up at any moment. Like Towers, he also found the sea rougher than he expected and banged his boat up badly. He, too, used a sea anchor. He nearly capsized several times. After six hours of misery he was picked up by the S. S. Ionia of the Hellenic Transport Company from Athens, Greece, and taken into Ponta Delgada.

The NC-4, with Read and five others aboard, made better speed than the other two and missed the worst of the fog, though the next morning she ran into fog at 1,200 feet and the pilot nearly lost control of her. After 13½ hours of flying, her navigator sighted the southern tip of the island of Flores through a rift in the fog. She was flying at 3,400 feet, but now spiralled down to 200 feet above the water, hoping to pick up a destroyer and check her position.

At this moment the weather began to thicken and things looked bad. Then Read, with excellent judgment, decided to make Horta. Here he landed at 1:23 p. m., Greenwich time, May 18, 1919, after 15 hours and 18 minutes of flying. He joined the others at Ponta Delgada on the twentieth.

I recall that Lieut. J. S. Breese, engineer officer of the NC-4, had put less gasoline in his plane than the others had, and that, I think, was why the NC-4 was able to make better speed than the others.

At this point the Navy Department ruled that Read would go on alone, though it had been taken for granted that if Towers's plane should be damaged, he, the commander, would board another plane. Read was weatherbound at Ponta Delgada until May 27. He left for Lisbon at 8:01 a. m., Greenwich civil time, and arrived at the Portuguese city after nine hours and 43 minutes in the air.

The Atlantic had been crossed by air for the first time in history.

Once more I turned south, sure my big chance had come and gone.

But the American Navy—bless her—had once more won the admiration of the world, and the Stars and Stripes had been the first across the Atlantic through the air.

ELSIE EKENGREN

Elsie Ekengren, 17-year-old schoolgirl, was one of a group aboard the SS. Rochambeau, en route to New York, discussing the treachery of the swirling, fog-blurred mid-Atlantic waters. The group didn't see how a man could live in those waves.

—— But Morton Hoyt, Washington (D. C.), society figure, thought a man could and without further ado climbed the rail and dove into the water. He proved it, because he swam until the captain, showing remarkable seamanship, swung the great vessel around and lowered lifeboats that combed through the fog. Here is the rescue boat pulling him from the sea.

DO YOU KNOW YOUR OWN "TRAFFIC COP"?

HE SHOULD BE A FRIEND OF YOURS

Wouldn't you like to drive to the office in the morning and speak thusly to your favorite "traffic cop" when he beams upon you—as though nothing ever happened to make him angry!—passing: "Good morning, Officer Rafferty"—or else yell, "Hi, Teddy!" Well, The Sun-Telegraph's series "Traffic Cops" will tell you how. This fellow today may be found on the South Side, but don't spend the day hunting for him when The Sun-Telegraph will tell you his name tomorrow.

YESTERDAY'S "TRAFFIC COP" WAS W. J. GRANEY, MARRIED, 1012 WARRINGTON AVENUE, SOUTH HILLS, WHO HAS SPENT THE PAST THREE YEARS OF HIS 21 YEARS OF SERVICE AT THE ENTRANCE OF THE LIBERTY TUBES.

PGH. PLANE BOOSTERS LEAVE FOR EAST

A tour of education for industrial leaders of Pittsburgh will be started tonight when 135 business men leave here for New York for a two-day visit, during which they will inspect flying fields and airplane factories for the purpose of getting better acquainted with aviation activities.

The trip is sponsored by local business men who are desirous of interesting local men to the end of making Pittsburgh a center for airplane manufacture.

In New York the party will be met by a number of business men, bankers and leaders in airplane manufacture. They will be taken on rides by prominent aviators, including Col. Arthur Goebel, Pacific flier, and Clarence Chamberlin, who flew to Berlin. Commander Richard E. Byrd also will be present when one inspection trip is made.

Saturday afternoon the visitors will go to Montauk Point, L. I., where they will inspect seaplanes.

Attorney George R. Hahn and Norman Aliderdice are leaders of the party.

Local businessmen, after a careful study of aviation, were impressed with the fact that there was an industrial development that promised to move ahead rapidly, and they believe this district is peculiarly well situated to attract this industry.

Will Rogers Says

SANTA MONICA, Cal., July 12.

Every man that was nominated to something or other during the late party uprisings, is having trouble trying to pick out a place to be notified that he was nominated.

In case they have trouble locating any of these candidates I would suggest they look in front of some radio broadcasting outfit. They will be there from now to November.

Say, Mayor Jimmie Walker gave a lot of the film people an awful roasting out here for being Republicans, and I am like Jimmie, I think any of us that are in the amusement line should naturally be Democrats.

Yours for reciprocity among comedians,

WILL ROGERS.

TWO STOLEN IDOLS
MYSTERY!! THRILLS! ADVENTURE! LOVE!!!
by FRANK L. PACKARD

Bob Surrounded by the Chinamen Is Shocked to See Verna Enter

CHAPTER XLIX.

ONE question brought another—confusing, perplexing, unanswerable. Bob Kingsley swept out his hand in a swift, impatient gesture, as though literally to brush them from his mind. What was the good, after all, of asking them? He couldn't answer them, and they got him nowhere. The one thing that mattered now was the very eloquent testimony borne by that menacing little exhibit on the stool to the fact that it was known the cipher thereon displayed was spurious, and that he would be invited to produce the genuine one!

He began to laugh. The genuine cipher was no longer in existence, and Captain Scarface was already on the way to Luala, so that— His face sobered suddenly. That worked both ways, didn't it? Perhaps it wasn't so humorous! What was he going to say? What was he going to do?

He was still staring at the two idols. He tried to remove his gaze, but back it went to them again. They were beginning to get in their work—they seemed to jeer mockingly at him now. He muttered a savage execration, and stepped suddenly toward them. At least, he'd take good care they didn't get him jumpy! He'd rob Java Dick of that much satisfaction anyhow! And since no other accommodation had been provided for him, why not the stool itself?

He brushed the idols unceremoniously off on the floor, sat down on the stool and lighted a cigaret. So much for that!

But now what? What was he up against? Perhaps it wasn't so bad, after all! If he were dealing with Chen-shu, he would have no delusions as to what the end would be even if he acceded instantly to the demand he knew the other would make for Hsi Yan's cipher; for, between himself and Chen-shu, and Chen-shu's followers, lay the fact that he had been an eye-witness to their murder of Col. Lyle. Promises, of course, they would make at first to get the cipher, for that was what they wanted above everything else; but in the end, whether he refused their demands or not, he would very certainly die, and very certainly die in a most unpleasant manner. But if, on the other hand, it was only with Java Dick and Mindar Singh that he had to deal, as he now believed it was, it would be quite a different matter. There would be nothing involved then but the treasure, and his situation in that case would be far from hopeless, in spite of the fact that Java Dick's little stage-setting here wasn't propitious, and that the man was probable quite as ruthless and unscrupulous as Chen-shu when it came to so minor a detail as that of murder! At the worst, the chances were he could make some deal with Java Dick. The treasure, after all, was a secondary consideration. He hadn't left Patua in search of treasure—and a dozen treasures counted not at all if he could still play out the last hand and settle accounts with Chen-shu and his viper brood for that night at Kalawa!

The cigaret was burned to a stub. How long did Java Dick think this solitary communion with the idols ought to last in order to produce its desired effect? There was no good shouting, no good kicking up a fuss, no good doing anything. There was nothing to do but wait. He lighted another cigaret—and then, in the act of throwing the match away, he caught the sound of footsteps outside the door. Instantly he pushed the stool against the wall, crossed one leg over the other, and leaned back—his cigaret hanging nonchalantly from his lips.

The door opened—and in the doorway bulked the vicious features and the misshapen form of Java Dick. Bob Kingsley did not move. He could see that the passageway behind Java Dick was filled with men, but it was dark out there and he could distinguish none of their faces.

Java Dick had halted abruptly—and his eyes, narrowing, traveled from Bob Kingsley to the idols on the floor and back to Bob Kingsley again.

"Blimy," he snarled, "you got a gall! But," he added gutturally, "gor'blimy, you'll need it all before you're through!"

Bob Kingsley made no answer. And though outwardly and to all appearances still nonchalant, he was battling inwardly now against the dismay, the sense of disaster, that suddenly swept upon him. It wasn't Java Dick and Mindar Singh alone with whom he had to deal! Coming into the room now behind Java Dick was Chen-shu, and behind Chen-shu was Won Fu, and behind Won Fu again were the three others, who had been on the Minotah and at Aoru, and one of these walked with a crutch. And crowding in the rear of these five, the passage still seemed to be full of Chinamen.

Bob Kingsley's eyes fastened on the man with the crutch. It was the fellow obviously that he had shot at Aoru. The blighter wasn't killed, then!

Chen-shu spoke—and in mockery made a low salutation.

"Even at the risk of disturbing the Heaven-Born's mediations," he said softly, "we are come to pay homage to one upon whom the protection and the high favor of the gods has for a long time past been so lavishly bestowed. Will his High Excellence deign to cast his glance upon those whom it has come to our unworthy ears he has expressed the wish to see gathered together—for, behold! we are those, whose number is now seventeen, who sailed with Hsi Yan to Kalawa!"

The room already seemed to be full of Chinamen, but more were still coming in.

"I miss one face, Chen-shu," said Bob Kingsley with studied insolence. "Where is your kennel-mate Mindar Singh?"

"Since it would seem that the High Excellence desires the presence of so lowly a personage," Chen-shu answered in silkly tones, "it is regrettable that Mindar Singh is not here, and that thus even a single wish of the Heaven-Born's should be ungratified. It is beyond understanding that the unappreciative Mindar Singh should have chosen so ill-fitting a moment to indulge in his devotions and to lament upon his evil and misspent life, and yet that accounts for his unforgiveable absence; but meanwhile we have brought one who will perhaps gladden the Heaven-Born's eyes still more."

The room was small. The Chinamen, as they entered, were milling around it. From his stool, Bob Kingsley, by reason of a group that had now come close to him, could no longer see the doorway. He stared at Chen-shu, who, with Java Dick, had crossed over to within a yard of where he sat—stared coldly and contemptuously. He did not understand Chen-shu's illusions. Something that promised an ugly denouement was brewing, of course—but he did not propose to give the man the satisfaction of playing up to his cat-and-mouse game by asking any questions.

And then Chen-shu smiled—blandly; and suddenly clapped his hands.

Those in front of Bob Kingsley moved a little to one side. He could see the doorway now. For an instant, his eyes fixed there, he sat motionless; and then, his veneer of nonchalance shattered utterly, a man beside himself with fear and fury, the stool crashed back against the wall from beneath him, and he was on his feet. Verna, in the grasp of two Chinamen, was standing just inside the door. He sprang forward—but those around him blocked his way, and pushed him violently back again.

"Are not the maiden's ears attuned to love?" laughed Chen-shu maliciously. "Surely she can hear across the room! Let the Heaven-Born talk to her from where he stands."

Bob Kingsley scarcely heard the words.

"Verna!" he cried out. His throat was dry. His voice made a harsh, rasping sound. "You here! You—too!"

She stood there very quietly; only her shoulders, usually so straight, were drooped a little now.

Lillian Has Her Interview With Dicky

DICKY'S eyes were almost murderous when in answer to his demand that I give up tutoring Eleanor Lincoln, I told him that I should continue to teach the girl. I knew that his fingers had the primitive itch to choke me into submission, but the veneer of twentieth century civilization held, and after an eternity of a second in which our hostile eyes held each other, he stepped back and bowed ceremoniously.

"I had — forgotten — our—agreement," he said, slowly. "I shall not forget it again."

He turned and went swiftly out of the door, while I fought and conquered the impulse to call him back and promise anything he asked. There was a terrifying finality in his tone which frightened me with the suggestion of something imminent, mystifying. But the remembrance of Edith Fairfax's pictured face and the message she had written to my husband clamped my lips.

A little later, when I had pulled myself together and had gone downstairs again, I found that Dicky also had himself in hand.

Lillian drew me aside almost as soon as I came downstairs.

"Remember, you promised me a chance at the Dicky-bird," she said, and as I nodded, recalling her wish to question Dicky concerning his knowledge of the red-bearded man, I wondered at the brightness of her eyes, and at the air of suppressed excitement which enveloped her like a cloak. The men in the shack back of the farmhouse must be especially dangerous and desperate individuals, I decided, to cause so unusual a reaction in my friend's manner.

It was not for another hour, however, that I was able to set the stage for her interview with Dicky, which she did not wish anyone to overhear. According to his invariable custom on his week-ends, Dicky took Junior upstairs for a bedtime romp before the boy went to sleep, and while he was gone it took all my ingenuity to inveigle Mother Graham into a bridge game with Katherine, Mary and Marion. I left myself free, in order to signal Lillian if anyone playing dummy should take it into her head to stroll out on the veranda, where I knew my friend had planned to talk to Dicky.

I did not need my elaborate precautions, however, for Mother Graham developed a fussiness about the game—to do her justice—an unusual occurrence—which kept the dummy of each round strictly at attention in her chair. And it was only I, half way between the bridge table and the windows opening upon the veranda, who heard Dickey's final explosive comment upon Lillian's indistinguishable, almost inaudible, murmurs.

"Well! I'll be—," he said, stopping short, evidently remembering his mothers' proximity. "So that's what you've got in your noodle, is it? Well! you'd better get it out again, pronto."

There was another murmur from Lillian, and then Dicky's voice again, lower but still audible:

"No! I'm not going through any infantile rigmarole like that for you or anybody else. I'll just repeat that it's a fool idea which you'd better give the air."

Are You One of Those Women?

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Certain women are sufficiently interesting in appearance to cause people to look twice. The secret is an outstanding smartness.

Always such a person appears perfectly groomed but the methods of acquiring this stamp are quiet and unobtrusive.

Here is one of the important ways: Use a powder that blends with your skin so smoothly that it looks a part of you. I have found this powder in France. Formerly it was made for my personal use only. Now you can buy it at your own toilet counter. The price is $1. It comes in a square box. Ask for Edna Wallace Hopper's Heavy Face Powder.

For certain skins which do not require as clinging a type I have what I call my Light Face Powder, which comes in a round box at a lower price.

Both types in Flesh, Brunette, White.

Banished Her Liver Trouble

McKees Rocks Lady Says Ten Herbs Made Great Change. Stomach Distress Gone.

"Of all the endorsements for Ten Herbs I have read, not one gives your medicine its just dues," was the statement of Mrs. Barbara Slezak, 304 Catherine Street, McKees Rocks, Pa., (near Pittsburgh), to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this celebrated herbal compound. "I myself feel that I cannot express in words what Ten Herbs has done for me," Mrs. Slezak continued.

"I was in such a weak, run-down condition that my lips were the color of white chalk. I was so nervous that I would jump at the least noise. My hands would shake, and I never slept well at night—would roll and toss by the hour. My liver was sluggish. I was billious and had dizzy spells. At times I could hardly stand up, and when I stooped over everything in front of me would be black. Although I was careful what I ate, gas would form, and I would bloat and belch, and my heart would palpitate. My kidneys caused pains across my back, and in the morning I would be so stiff I could hardly arise.

"I tried all kinds of medicines, but it was only when a friend induced me to try Ten Herbs that I got any results. The very first bottle made a change for the better, and seemed to put new life and strength in my body. Ten Herbs is making a new woman of me. My liver and kidneys are working fine. My complexion has cleared, and I am getting color in my cheeks. Billiousness and dizzy spells have left me, and so have the pains across my back. I have a better appetite and have no fear of misery after eating—no more gas, belching, or heart palpitation. My nerves are stronger and my hands do not shake. What a glorious feeling it is to arise feeling rested and refreshed in the morning."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

'One Thousand Kisses' By SUSETTE SANS

THERE was a bang, a hiss and a thud and Peggy felt the left rear wheel of her shiny new coupe thump upon the road. She stopped the engine and leaned out over the car door. Was ever a tire flatter or a day hotter?

Peggy groaned, then taking her eyes from the flat tire, glanced at her own reflection in the mirror beside the windshield. White flannel sports suit—jaunty felt hat on a saucy head—then down at her size two and a half white kid slippers now beating a nervous tat-too on the floor of the car.

"Flat, not a garage in sight, and 50 miles from home. Page Lady Luck!"

"Sure and did ye say Lady Lucky, miss?" cried a laughing voice at her elbow.

Peggy started, and glancing up, looked into roguish blue eyes.

With the thermometer 95 in the shade, Peggy froze.

"I was talking to myself."

"And ye didn't want any answer," answered the Irish voice.

No, she didn't want any answer, but oh—she could use help with that tire. Peggy thawed.

"The tire is flat, you see," she cooed in a voice that savored of milk and honey, "I was just accusing the gods of having vent their wrath upon me."

"Sure now and if I were one, you would be a favorite of the gods," replied the laughing voice.

Peggy looked haughtilly into the handsome face at the car window and hung icicles on every word as she answered.

"Even that wouldn't get me home with this flat tire."

The blue eyes so near her own twinkled mischievously.

"Weep no more, my lady. Here is the Irish Idler—at your service."

Peggy smiled and two tiny dimples played at the corner of her mouth.

"The spare is on the back—here is the key, Mr. ——" and she stopped.

"Just a Roaming Romeo, sweet lady, placed on this earth to aid damsels in distress."

Peggy's thermometer descended below 32 and she became interested in the scenery on the opposite side of the car.

The Irishman continued whistling as he jacked up the wheel, and glanced laughingly at the haughty profile as he took the spare from the rear of the car.

Curiosity—the largest factor in most women's makeup—was 90 per cent of Peggy's whole being. She favored the Irishman with a glance.

"Are you an automobile mechanic?"

"At present, Miss."

Peggy frowned and gazed once more at the scenery—on the opposite side of the car.

The Irishman went on working and whistling and Peggy felt him take out the jack and heard him place it with the other tools in the back of the car. She reached for her purse on the seat beside her. "I will pay you now," she said proudly without meeting those tantalizing eyes. "And if you need work, I'm sure my father might be able to help you."

The Irishman grinned.

"Are ye married?" he asked suddenly.

Peggy answered "no" and then bit her lip. Why had she been so eager to tell him that?

"Good!" shouted the Irishman, "for that's the one rule." And before Peggy could answer or resist him, the handsome face came closer and two warm lips were pressed upon hers.

"Oh, you cad," she cried, and throwing the car in gear, sped down the road. After five miles she wasn't nearly so angry—after 10 miles she smiled and after 20 miles she wondered if she would ever see that Roaming Romeo again.

And she did—that very evening. The Van Fleet's were giving a dance for Marjorie Mears, their niece from Virginia. And the very first face Peggy spied as she entered the door that night was the dark, handsome one of her Irish samaritan. There he stood, as immaculate as any young man present. Heavens! he was smiling to her—what would she do? What could she say?

Then Mrs. Van Fleet was coming toward her, followed by the handsome Irishman.

"Peggy dear, I'm so glad you could come home," she cried—and then—"This is Donald Farraway, Peggy. Donald I want you to meet—Peggy Trent."

Donald Farraway took Peggy's hand and she felt her cheeks grow hot as she acknowledged the introduction and spoke to Mrs. Van Fleet. And then she was left standing there alone with that handsome Irishman.

"I am and I'm not," he whispered, bending his head to look her in her eyes.

Peggy tried to frown and said—"What?"

"Sorry—for what I did."

"You should be," she retorted and tried to pass, but he caught her hand.

"I'll give it back—if you say so."

"Let me go or I'll scream," Peggy cried—"I—I hate you."

"Sure, and there's an old Irish tale that says if you hate first it later turns to love."

"You're impossible?" she cried. "Let me go."

The Irishman raised her hand to his eyes—then release it.

"I love you little Peggy. And I swear by an Irishman's honor that I've never said so to another girl."

Peggy fled and felt Donald Farraway's eyes upon her. And every time she glanced up that evening, she seemed to meet his glance.

Later, as they all sat down to the rose-decked table, Mrs. Van Fleet whispered to Peggy who sat on her left.

"Did Donald tell you about his fraternity wager?"

"Wager?"

"Yes—he bet his frat brothers that he could go out this summer and gather one thousand kisses from one thousand girls."

Peggy glanced across the table at Donald Farraway and if a look could have slain, he would have died as he sat in his chair.

"But he confided to me this evening," continued the sweet voice of Mrs. Van Fleet, "that he had met the one and only girl and that after kissing her, the other nine-hundred and ninety-nine would die unkissed by him."

The dimples came back to Peggy's mouth and glancing across the table, she looked into two rouguish blue eyes. Much later, when she had decided he had suffered enough, she gave him a dance. But they did not dance. Instead he took her hand and hurried her out upon the terrace with its velvety grass carpeting and soft moonbeam lighting. Across the terrace he led her, over to the vine shaded pergola at the farthest end of the garden.

"This, young lady," he whispered, "is what you get for being the sweetest girl in all the world." And he kissed her many times.

"Only one from each girl!" Peggy answered, when she could get her breath.

"No; I'm going to collect a thousand from one girl."

"But your wager?"

"After seeing you all bets are off," he laughed, and took her in his arms again.

Later that night, after Peggy had answered "yes" to a certain important question, Donald Farraway stopped into the telegraph office.

"Lost a bet—won a wife," he wrote and put a check beside the word "cable." Then he laughed again. What a joke—he had forgotten to tell Peggy Trout that she was engaged to marry his lordship, Sir Donald Farraway, lord of Greenbriar Castle, Dublin, Ireland.

★ SUN-TELEGRAPH ★ SPORTS ★

SPEAKING OF SPORTS

by HARRY KECK

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

IT TAKES a fine amateur sporting event, such as The Sun-Telegraph's tournament for junior and sub-junior golfers at Schenley Park today, to bring home the lesson of real AMATEUR competition.

Youthful enthusiasm, splendid sportsmanship, a total absence of bickering over the amateur status of the contestants—these are the distinguishing features. Fathers and mothers and brothers and sisters and uncles and aunts on hand to watch the competition. Hundreds competing for a handful of prizes and the love of the sport. And all gaining experience that will stand them in good stead in their later days.

How refreshing as a change from the more prosaic parade of professional and near-professional performers whose first thought is of the spoils and sliding by with as little effort as possible:

The Sun-Telegraph is justly proud of this tournament for the boys. It is glad to have sponsored it, and it thanks all of those who are competing and all those who have assisted in making it the big and eminently successful affair that it has proved to be.

WHERE there is so much smoke there must be some fire. Despite the whitewashing he received at the hands of the A. A. U. authorities, Charley Paddock goes to the Olympic games under a cloud. His amateur status, challenged not once but numerous times, he now finds the sports world asking how he can capitalize his fame as an athlete by appearing in a motion picture as an Olympic hero and yet be a simon-pure amateur. It is said he is receiving no pay for his acting before the camera, but that is hardly logical. If he is not getting the pay now he probably will get it later, or will be reimbursed in some other manner. George W. Wightman, of Boston, former president of the United States Lawn Hennis Association, is to be congratulated on his action in resigning as a vice president of the American Olympic Committee in the face of the decision of the A. A. U. giving a clean bill of health in star chamber session on the eve of the departure of the American squad for Amsterdam. A public airing of the charges was the mildest treatment the situation called for.

IN Newark, N. J., the other night, a boxing scribe who had been telling the fans the truth about one-sided matches was slugged by members of a gang while on his way home from one of the poor shows. The management of the club was blamed and has had its license rescinded by the boxing commission. The better element of fans will string along with the scribe in this instance, while the rowdy portion will say he deserved his fate for not minding his own business.

A boxing club caters to the public and therefore is open to criticism if it does not give that public a run for its money. If a newspaperman has the gumption to fight unselfishly for the public's interest, he deserves the commendation of the public. The way for the club to fight back is to take the hint and improve its shows, not to hire thugs to beat up the critic.

THERE may be no sympathy in baseball, as frequently has been asserted, but it a a fact that the average baseball fan is just about the most sympathetic of mortals. When the news was broadcast that Catcher Earl Smith had been dropped by the Pirates, after having got into the bad graces of the management, a representative of a group of fans called this office on the telephone to get an opinion on whether or not the newspapers would support a move to raise a fund for the deposed player. When told that Smith had brought on his release by his own actions, the fan said he and his partners in the fund idea always had liked Earl's aggressiveness on the field and hated to see him out of a job and wanted to do something for him.

Imagine the public taking up a purse by popular subscription for a poor but honest clerk or laborer with a family depending on him for support after he had been fired or had been laid off because of a slackness in work! Yet the baseball players, who receive handsome salaries for six months' work a year and have their expenses paid during half of the season while they are on the road and should be well fixed financially, with careful management of their incomes, always can find men in less favorable circumstances ready to rush to their aid regardless of whether or not such assistance is needed or merited.

Tunney To Stay Hefty

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 12 — (AP.) — Generous doses of milk have kept Gene Tunney from training down too fine for the defense of his title against Tom Heeney at the Yankee stadium July 26. Although the champion still has two weeks of work, he is now just short of the peak of condition. He weighs 197 pounds, and after a hard workout he is five pounds lighter, the exact weight he intends to carry when he faces Heeney.

Tunney restores the five pounds he loses in the ring every day by drinking three pints of milk after each session. He does not intend to let his poundage drop until the eve of the title bout. He has already reached the point where he must reduce his roadwork. Yesterday he ran only four and one-half miles.

Spectators are charged 50 cents to watch the champion cuff his sparring partners, Harold Mays and Billy Vladbeck. The proceeds go to the little St. James Catholic Church here. The champion has a convincing explanation of so-called unorthodox training methods.

"Strength and power are nothing more than nervous energy," he claims, "and there are four ways of expending it, worry, brain work, physical effort and digestion."

Tunney gets plenty of sleep and relaxation and conserves the resulting nervous energy by avoiding all worry and eating but two meals daily to aid his digestion.

Hot Weather Cuts Weight

ABOARD S. S. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, July 12.—(AP.)—Rest is the principal occupation of the members of the American Olympic team for the first days of their voyage to Amsterdam if they follow the prescription of their coaches.

The intense heat during the final tryouts at Cambridge sapped the strength of the athletes to such an extent that the four decathlon performers lost an aggregate of 50 pounds. Tom Churchill dropped 14 pounds, Barney Berlinger came out of the trials 12 pounds lighter, while Ken Doherty and James Stewart lost 11½ pounds each. According to Head Coach Lawson Robertson, they are underweight, as well as several of the others, including Fred Alderman, Herman Phillips and John Collier.

The men need rebuilding after their training grind more than they need workouts, according to Robertson. The coach plans to let his men rest until tomorrow at least, when he may start daily exercises. All running is under ban while on ship because of the danger of pulling tendons.

The University of California crew were the first members of the Olympic squad to prepare for action after the ship sailed at noon yesterday. They began unpacking their rowing machines soon after leaving the harbor and are ready for daily workouts.

Chesty Joie Ray, who will run for America in the 10,000 meter run and the marathon, is another who feels that he needs rest more than exercise. "I ran miles Tuesday," Joie said, "and I don't need any more running until we arrive in Amsterdam. I'm in the best shape of my career now. As for exercise, I'd like to put on the gloves if some good bantam wants a workout."

The Cuban sprinter, Jose Barrientos, the only Olympic representative of his country, is traveling to Amsterdam aboard the President Roosevelt with the American team. Barrientos spent the first afternoon getting a few tips on Olympic competition from the veteran American sprinters, Jackson Scholz and Charley Paddock.

Two members of the squad barely made the ship as it sailed, in spite of the warnings of the Olympic committee to arrive in plenty of time. C. E. Mason, Jr., a member of the Harvard four-oared crew, and David Young of the water polo team, had to board the President Roosevelt from tugs after it had left its pier.

SPAIN PICKS STARS

BARCELONIA, Spain, July 12.—(AP.)—Four athletes have been named by the Spanish Olympic Committee as certain members of the team which will represent Spain in the ninth Olympic at Amsterdam. It also is probable that four other men will be included in the team for the individual events in addition to four members of a 400-meter relay team.

The men whose names have definitely been included in the list are Ordoner, of Madrid, who will compete in the 100 and 200-meter dashes; Miguel, of Cataluna, in the 400 and 800-meter runs; Culo, of Cataluna, in the pole vault, and Ferrer, of Cataluna, a marathon runner.

Others named as probable contestants are Labourdette in the broad jump, Reneigos in the 5,000 meters and distance events. The four sprinters for the relay team and Calceta, who may run in the 1,500-meter event are possible members of the team.

Rumors of More Pirates to be Dropped Unfounded, Management Says — Meadows Ready for Relief Duty—"The Stadium" New Name of Former Pitt Bowl—John Egan In Hospital Again.

FOR no apparent reason, the impression appears to exist in some quarters that the Pittsburgh baseball club has started on a big job of housecleaning, or of shaking up the Pirate forces, and that the dropping of Earl Smith and John Miljus is to be followed by the releasing of several other players.

Lee Meadows.

Nothing could be farther from the truth, the officials and management of the club declare. The release of Smith and Miljus was not the beginning of a wholesale housecleaning, they say, but merely the dropping of two men who did not promise to be of any further use to the team.

THAT other clubs in the big show shared Pittsburgh's views is indicated by the fact that all 15 of the other clubs in the majors waived on Smith, though the Cardinals have since signed him, and that only one of the 15 claimed Miljus.

The assurance is given that the work of ridding the team of players who were not helping it was not concluded with the dismissal of Smith and Miljus. There will be no more releases at this time, it is stated. Waivers are not held on any other players and no more requests for anything of the sort are contemplated.

IN OTHER words the Bucs are going to stand pat with their present total of 21 players until an opportunity arrives to add some new material that promises to prove helpful.

You may expect to see even Lee Meadows back in the game soon. The veteran's ailing arm has been yielding to treatment and the hot weather lately, he is working out daily, and he is reported ready for relief work as soon as he may be needed.

DO YOU know that the "Pitt" Stadium has passed out of existence? Well, it's a fact. The big concrete bowl on the hill overlooking Oakland is still there, but as far as its original name is concerned it is a thing of the past. From now on the name of the huge athletic field, which ranks among the largest and greatest stadia in the country, will be simply "The Stadium." The word "Pitt" has been dropped as part of the agreementt whereby the football teams of the University of Pittsburgh and Carnegie Institute of Technology will make the bowl their joint home field next year. It was agreed that it would not be giving Carnegie a fifty-fifty break to let the field continue to bear the name of the other institution in the double occupancy, so henceforth it will be "The Stadium," as much the home of the Tartan as of the Panthers.

Clarence Overend.

YESTERDAY'S victory in the growing string of the Pirates was noteworthy because it made the winning streak of the Bushmen the longest that they have placed to their credit at any time this season.

It was the fifth consecutive triumph of the Buccaneers, and their best previous performance was four in a row. Those four wins were accomplished by beating Boston three straight times on May 4, 5 and 7 by scores of 13 to 3, 6 to 2, and 9 to 4, and by downing New York on May 8, by the score of 6 to 5.

THE game with the Phils yesterday also wound up the first half of the season for the Pittsburgh team, as it was their seventy-seventh contest of the year in a schedule of 154 games.

Donie Bush's ballers will open the second half of their campaign this afternoon in the third game of the series against the Phils. The latter have not won a game here this season up to date, losing four in succession.

AMONG the boxing men who concede Tom Heeney a chance against Gene Tunney in their meeting for the heavyweight championship two weeks from tonight is Philadelphia Jack O'Brien. In expressing the opinion however, he adds "provided no attempt is made to change the Australian's style.

"If Tom fights in his own style and does not try to play Tunney's game," O'Brien is quoted, "he figures to have a pretty good chance, because he is a sturdy fellow who can take a punch and keep right on coming. If the New Zealander is in the right shape and can carry the fight to the champion all the way Tunney may not do so well. This will be Gene's first trip over the long route in a championship fight.

"I KNOW that Heeney has his faults, but if there is any attempt to alter his style, to teach him to be cute, he will lose 50 per cent of his effectiveness. Most of the fighters of his type give way to a yearning to be clever at some period of their careers. I can't think of one of them who has switched his style with any good results.

Jack O'Brien.

"Every ring man has a natural style and if carefully coached along the lines of his own inclinations he will reach the maximum of efficiency. I know that dozens of good youngsters have been spoiled because their handlers have tried to make drastic changes in their natural style. Deviation from the natural style of any particular young boxer is bad and when an attempt is made to make over an experienced man like Heeney the result is hopeless.

"OF COURSE, I don't mean to say that a boxer should be permitted to do things that are all wrong. That would be silly. But a boxer should be developed along the lines of his natural style. I can watch a youngster for a couple of rounds and make out his style. If he is a natural fighter and I have anything to say about it he never will be asked to try to be a clever boxer.

"Run down the list of great fighters and you will find that each had a style that was individual. They reached the top because they developed their special talents to the highest point. All famous fighters have scores of imitators, but the imitators do not get far, because they are trying to play another fellow's game instead of their own."

INSTRUCTS TH SUN-TELEGRAPH EVENT PLAYERS

John Jay Burke, executive committeeman of the United States Golf Association and city office manager of the Allegheny county parks, drove the first ball off the tee to start play in The Sun-Telegraph's junior and sub-junior amateur golf tournament in Schenley Park today. Above he is seen instructing a group of players on the procedure of the tournament.

FUSSELL TO FACE PHILLIES TODAY

BULLETIN.

With five straight victories under their belt, the Pirates enjoyed a day of rest today when rain began to fall shortly after noon, necessitating a postponement. The Phillies series ends tomorrow. No date for the playoff of today's scheduled battle has been set.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

THE Pirates are making hay at the expense of the Eastern clubs. Winning their last five battles, with the Giants and Phillies furnishing the opposition in the Oakland orchard, the Freebooters will tackle the boys from the City of Brotherly Love in the third game of the series this afternoon and seek their sixth victory in a row.

Fred Fussell, clever lefthander, is rested and to Fred will go the task of measuring the Quakers for another setback. Fussell's recent exploits have tended to boost his stock quite high among Pittsburgh partisans. Among his recent successes were victories over the Giants and Cardinals. Russell Miller, International League recruit, is due to pitch for the visitors.

Shortstop Glenn Wright and Leftfielder Clyde Barnhart are both ready to go to their positions, but Manager Bush does not fancy the idea of lifting Dick Bartell and Pete Scott while the club is winning.

WIN SHORT FRAY

The Oaklanders won a bob-tailed battle from the Quakers yesterday, the final score being 3 to 1. Twice in the sixth inning the fight was halted by showers. The first pause saw the athletes resting for 37 minutes, this occurring in the first half of the sixth. In the home half another shower occurred and the players went to their dugouts for 21 minutes. The umpires then called off the fray definitely on account of wet grounds. The Buccos had runners on first and second with two out at the time of the decision.

Ervin Brame, the impressive Kentuckian who set the Giants down Saturday, was out in front yesterday and moving in a masterly way when he was struck on the pitching hand with a drive from Fresco Thompson's bat. The accident occurred in the third round and it was feared at the time that Brame would not be able to continue. His injured hand seemed to be giving him trouble as the game progressed and when the Phils threatened to shell him in the fifth, Carmen Hill rushed to the mound. Carmen did a fine relief job.

CLUB managers who spent playing days under the direction of John McGraw appear to be profiting by their experiences. A passing list of pilots and the clubs they are keeping in the various races would include Bill McKechnie, St. Louis; Bill Southworth, Rochester; Frank Snyder, Houston, and Casey Stengel, Toledo.

Bunker Hill appeared to have a lot of stuff when he went to the rescue of Brame yesterday. Consistent pitching from Kremer and Hill during the next 10 weeks would be a boon to the Pirates, now that Fussell and Brame are turning in victories, MEANTIME Grimes moves along as the hardest worker in the majors. Burleigh is getting close to 200 innings as he toils in his regular turn. As he generally holds to his great strength in the hot months, it would not be surprising if he leads the two leagues in total innings when the season's books are balanced.

Earl Smith passed a couple of hours with the Pirates yesterday afternoon before the ball game started. Smith visited the newspapermen and thanked them for the treatment accorded him during his long term of service with the Pirates.

EARL will not get another contract as big as the one which has just been liquidated, but St. Louis owners may have to pay him a bonus, inasmuch as they did not have to fork over the waiver price.

The real reason why the various teams waived on Earl is reflected in the contract under which he worked for the Pirates. Oil was one of the "five-figure" boys, and few clubs are looking for reserve players at that figure. Provided he were claimed over the waiver plan, his contract would remain in effect.

THE fact that six major league teams were in touch with him shows that many managers think Smith can help a team. To give Earl his due it can be stated that he worked very hard to get in top shape this year, and he actually was in fine condition when he injured his leg in Cincinnati the first week of the season. The accident slowed him down woefully.

NEAR-PAR 68 TOPS EARLY SCORES

honors at 71, a score worthy of winning any average junior competition. All played consistently good golf from the first tee to the last green, and on almost every hole they were putting for par.

Joseph Delnachio's 76 in the sub-junior division was regarded as exceptionally brilliant work for such a youthful performer. Delnachio started well and finished well, never going more than one stroke over par on any hole and never being shaken from his beautiful even golfing stride. His card:

Out ....4 6 5 4 4 4 4 6 4—39
In ....4 5 4 4 4 4 4 4 4—37—76

Mickey Donohue of Wheeling, W. Va., and Frank Brunner shared the runner-up position with 78 each and Andy Galeck and William DePietro followed with one stroke more.

Although the record-breaking field necessitated starting the tournament play at 5:45 a. m., the boys scheduled to tee off in the early hours showed boundless enthusiasm and many were on hand long before that hour. By 7 o'clock approximately 200 contestants and as many spectators had appeared at the Schenley clubhouse, and, aided by a touch of perfect weather the scene was one such as the local public links never before has witnessed.

John Jay Burke, executive committeeman of the United States Golf Association, formally opened the tournament by driving off the first ball.

FIELD ORDERLY

The field was very gentlemanly at the outset, little trouble being had from the boys regarding the etiquette of the game. The Sun-Telegraph provided each boy with a set of the rules of golf, the United States Golf Association code, before the tournament started, and the boys seemingly profited by its knowledge.

The boys seemed to take great pains in replacing their divots. A sign which read: "Any boy who is found not replacing his divots will be disqualified" had its effect.

Al McBride, Schenley's popular professional; William Earl Super, assistant professional; Chuck Onoratta, assistant professional; Andy Petrolia, caddie-master; Eddie Kunold, superintendent of the clubhouse; Tom O'Keefe, time clerk; Hoppy Hapchuck, club-maker, and Frank Petrolia, keeper of the restaurant, who has lowered his prices especially for the boys, are taking a great interest in the tournament and helping direct it.

The last pair will not leave the first tee until late this afternoon. The boys are teeing off at four-minute intervals without a halt.

The prizes will not be distributed to the winners until one day next week, after time has been had to check on every score card. A luncheon will mark the occasion.

Stanley August sinks his final putt on the home green for a 71, which placed him among the early leaders in the junior division. The only better score when August finished was Joseph Curto's fine 68. Conrad Dodson, a caddie at Stanton Heights, tied August's count.

Strangler Lewis To Retire In Year

CHICAGO, July 12.—(AP.)—Ed "Strangler" Lewis, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, will sail from New York July 20 for a three-months' tour of England and the Continent. After a series of exhibitions abroad the champion will return for his farewell tour of the United States as a champion.

"One more year and I'll be ready to chuck the job of defending the title," Lewis said today. He will be accompanied on his continental tour by Billy Sandow, his manager.

REDS SIGN STAR

CHICAGO, July 12.—(AP.)—Luke Johnsos, captain and shortstop of the 1928 Northwestern University baseball team, will report to the Cincinnati Reds next season. Johnsos played an outstanding game on the team that finished at the bottom of the Western Conference standing this year, losing every game.

Wins After Hard Fights

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

Jimmy Crookston

THE Pennsylvania state amateur golf championship is back at Stanton Heights. Jimmy Crookston, who held the title back in 1925, brought it back by out-golfing two members of the famous Fownes family of Oakmont over the Oakmont links yesterday in the finals of this year's tourney, first defeating H. C. Fownes II in the morning round and then defeating W. C. Fownes, Jr., former state and national amateur champion in the final match in the afternoon.

Four golfers began play in the morning in semi-final round. The elder Fownes was paired against the tourney's sensation, Jimmy Flinn of the Fox Chapel Club. Flinn, who had previously eliminated two Philadelphia stars, was unequal to the task of playing through the veteran ex-champion, and the match ended on the eleventh green. Flinn failed to win a hole, though he halved two.

Crookston met H. C. Fownes II, and defeated that player 2 and 1 in an exciting match. The younger Fownes showed fine form at times, but lost an early lead.

Crookston played steady golf to defeat the elder Fownes in the finals. He went into the lead on the ninth hole when Fownes missed a two-foot putt. The first five holes of the homeward journey were halved. Jimmy increased his lead to two up when he won the fifteenth. The sixteenth was halved and the match ended on the seventeenth in a downpour of rain when Crookston steadied and won the hole with a fine four.

GRATTAN BARS WINS GRAND CIRCUIT STAKE

TOLEDO, O., July 12.—(AP.)—Before 10,000 spectators and on a track that was lightning fast, Grattan Bars, owned by Fred Thrower, of Kerwood, Ont., and driven by Vic Fleming, of Cleveland, raced to a sensational victory in straight heats in the $25,000 stake event for class eight pacers at Fort Miami Park here yesterday. The horse won $15,625 for his owners.

SHADE VS. OOM PAUL

CHICAGO, July 12.—(INS.)—Gabe Kaufman, Kansas City boxing promoter, announced here today that he had matched Dave Shade, prominent middleweight contender, and Paul Berlenbach, former world light heavyweight champion. They will box in Muehlebach Field, Kansas City, July 27, Kaufman said. The bout is scheduled at 10 rounds.

M'TIGUE SUSPENDED

PHILADELPHIA, July 12.—(AP.)—Mike McTigue, former light heavyweight boxing champion, has been suspended indefinitely by the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission for fouling Matt Adgie, of Philadelphia, in the fourth round of a bout here Monday night.

Fish-Hawk's Nest Full of Golf Balls

WILDWOOD, N. J., July 12.—(INS.)—The board of governors of the Wildwood Golf Club will vote today on the momentous question of whether a fish-hawk's nest should be removed from a tree on the ninth fairway.

One member of the board, William Hunt, will vote in the affirmative. He smacked a sparkling drive off the ninth tee yesterday, but was unable to locate the ball until he noticed a commotion in the hawk's nest. Upon investigation, Hunt's ball and six others were found in the nest of the greedy bird.

suffered a long siege and was operated upon for kidney trouble. After returning home his progress toward a complete recovery was not as rapid nor as steady as had been hoped for, and his physicians have decided that another operation is advisable. It will not be performed until he has rested up in the hospital for a time. The confidence is expressed that John will recover in time to take his usual part in football this year, and the attending doctors have advised him to accept the appointments that are being offered to him to officiate during the 1928 season, most of which are for major games on college gridirons.

CLARENCE (BUDDY) OVEREND, graduate manager of athletics at Carnegie Tech, has returned from a short vacation trip, and is already up to his neck in work, hoping to complete beforee August 1 the greater part of the business preliminaries for the 1928 season.

Indeed, Buddy is not stopping at the 1928 season, but is giving much attention to his schedules for a year or two to follow, an earlier start than usual being necessary in order to make them fit in with Pitt's slates.

Overend does not hesitate to tell the world that Carnegie Tech is going to have a great team this year. "And in spite of heavy losses, I feel sure that Pitt will have a good team, too," he declared.

PIRATES

Southern on second with none out. Thompson's fly to Scott might have resulted in a tally, but Pete Scott made a fine return of the ball to Hargreaves and the pitcher was touched out. There was no scoring in the inning.

Pie Traynor won the contest for the Buccos in the third with a two-run three bagger. Pie tried to sacrifice with runners on second and first. The bunt went foul and Pie then cracked out a three-bagger to left-center.

Benge continued in the fine stride the youngster has shown since he hooked up with the Phillies. The recruit lost a tally in the second inning through the eagerness of Cy Williams to sprint plateward on a fly to Scott. Cy stepped off the bag an instant before the ball reached Peterkin. Traynor noted the mistake and after taking the ball to the bag he was awarded the decision by Umpire Pfirman.

Brame drove in Scott with the first Pirate run when he smeared a hot single to right in the second with two out. Hurst scored the foe's only run in the fourth, Sand driving him in from second with a hit after two of the Quakers had been erased.

OLD GOLD hits a homer for BABE RUTH in Blindfold cigarette test

"YES... I am well over 21 ... so I could see no reason why I shouldn't make the blindfold test. As I tried the four leading cigarettes I kept this 'box score' on the results:

No. 1 . . . . out at first
No. 2 . . . . . . this one 'fanned'
No. 3 . . . . . . out on a pop fly
No. 4 (OLD GOLD) . a home run hit!

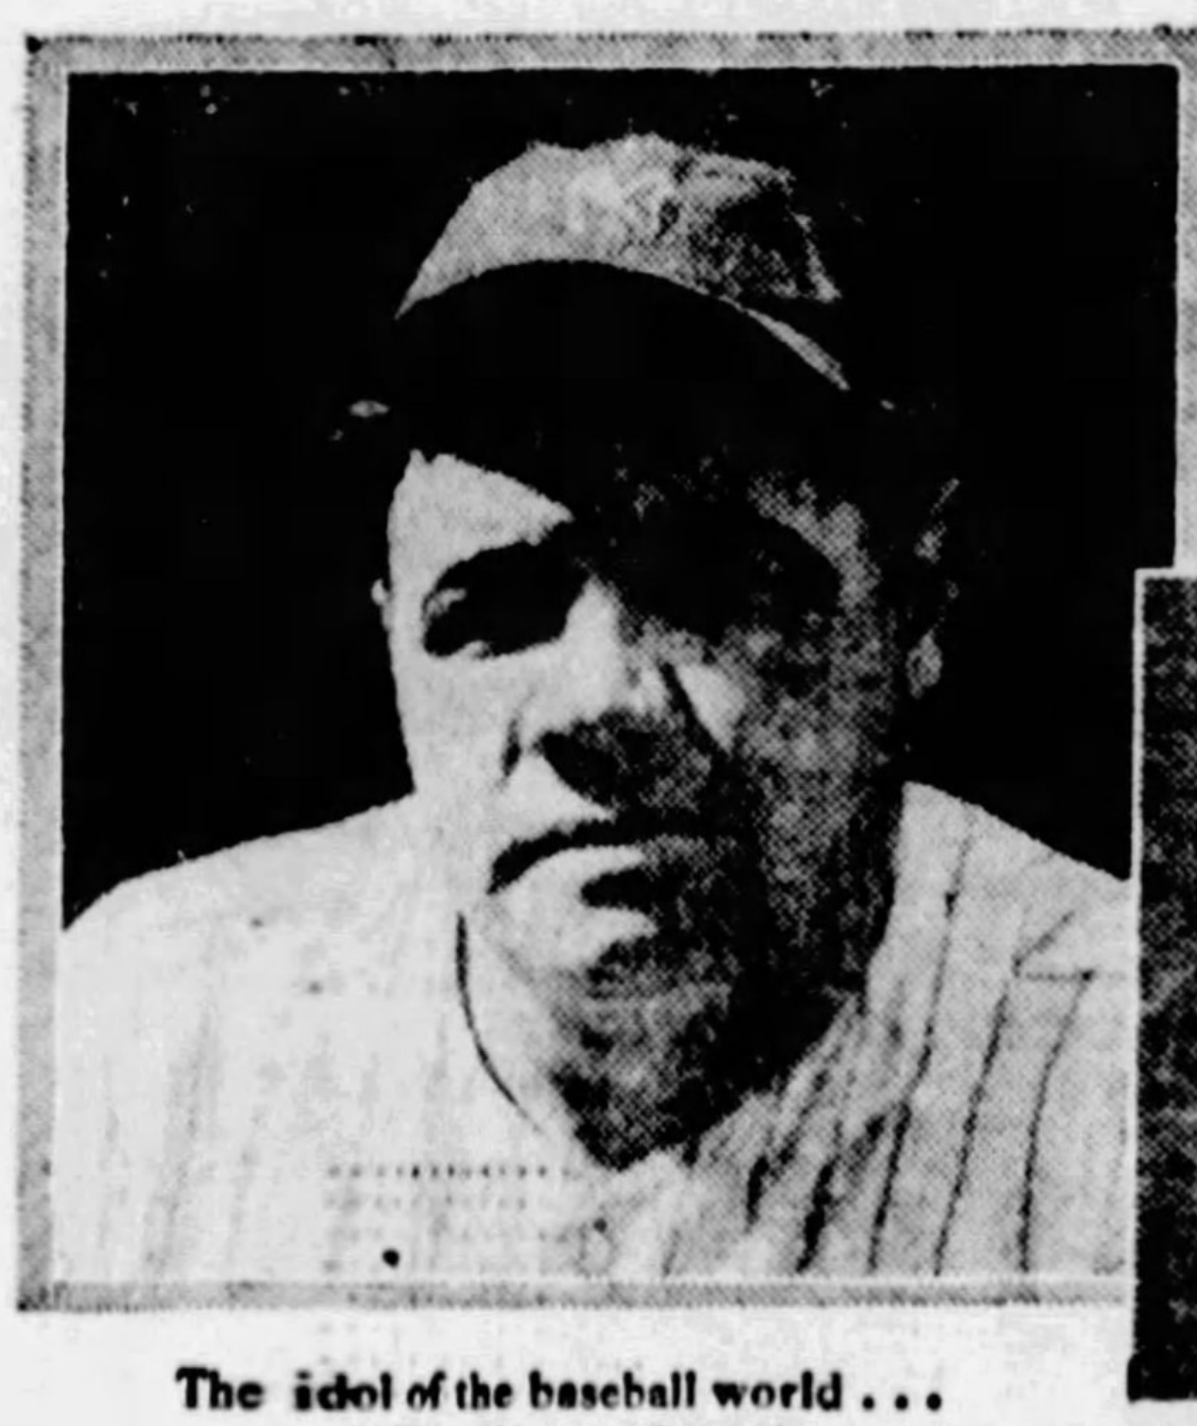
"OLD GOLD'S mildness and smoothness marked it 'right off the bat' as the best."

Babe Ruth

BABE RUTH . . . making the test in the dressing room at the Yankee Stadium. He was asked to smoke each of the four leading brands, clearing his taste with black coffee between smokes. Only one question was asked: "Which one do you like best?"



The idol of the baseball world . . . "The King of Swat"

On a non-stop flight to the bleachers ? . . .

Why do they choose OLD GOLD . . . even in the dark?

What is this superiority that wins so many famous people? It's simply honey-like smoothness . . . the new and delightful quality that OLD GOLD has added to cigarettes. And it comes from the heart-leaves of the tobacco plant . . . the finest tobacco that grows. That's why you can pick an OLD GOLD with your eyes closed. And that's why OLD GOLD is the fastest growing cigarette in America.

Rich Parents' Troubles; Business Men's Problem

By B. C. FORBES

ONE rich parent whose son has just graduated from college, discovers that the young man has never given a thought as to what line of work he would like to take up. In fact, the son shows no keen desire to do any kind of work.

Another wealthy family finds that sonny had been using his generous allowance at college to cultivate a taste for alcohol and now his drinking habits are causing concern.

Still another parent, also rich, confides that he is alarmed because his oldest son has utterly failed to exhibit any interest in business, although he has been out of college several years. This case is complicated by his mother taking a sympathetic attitude toward the son's contention that, since papa has an abundance of money, there's no need for any member of the family to sweat.

OFTEN you hear poor parents express deep regret that they cannot give their children a college education. Other parents, a little higher up the financial scale, bewail the fact that they do not have highly influential friends who could give their children a promising start in the world. Some other parents envy those who can supply capital to set their children up in business at a very early age.

HOW to get sons of well-to-do parents to take life seriously has become a more acute problem today probably than ever before. Certainly there never was a time when so many young men of more than 20 years of age finished their schooling without having directed their studies and thoughts towards a definite line of work. Apparently the vast majority of students are content to enjoy all the advantages of college life without pausing to ponder just how they should put their learning to useful service, once they enter the world of realities. In the old days the custom was for students to study for one of the professions: therefore, they were in a position to bend their studies towards their chosen aim.

But now business of one type or another claims an increasing number of graduates, and the most that the majority of students know is that they intend to "go into some line of business." When they come face to face with the problem of choosing their life's work they are bewildered. Nine times in ten when you ask a graduating student, "Just what kind of work do you want?" he replies in a vague, shiftless sort of way, "Oh, I don't know. Anything, I guess." And then he expects you to steer him to an ideal opening!

I AM beginning to wonder whether poor parents need envy rich parents when it comes to handling growing sons.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., told me some time ago, when he was discussing his multifarious responsibilities, that the problem to which he felt it necessary to devote most thought of all, was how to bring up his large family, so that they might become creditable citizens. And you may have noticed from the newspapers that at least once a year, Mr. Rockefeller casts business aside to go off on a vacation with his boys—he has five. Mr. Rockefeller realizes that to make a success of this job he must give it adequate time and earnest attention.

But is it not true that a tragic number of successful men of affairs are so busy that they give scant time or thought to association with their children in an intimate way and striving to mold their minds into right channels? Which is the wiser course, to give up practically all one's time and effort to making more money, or to give up much time to making better men of one's sons?

Judging by results, he who concentrates solely on money making usually pays dearly for neglecting man-making.

ON THE whole, the job of parenthood would appear to be conducted more successfully by poor parents than by rich parents. Real achievement springs more often from the humble-born than from the rich born.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, July 12.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened easy today at a decline of 20 to 27 points. October contracts selling off to 22.01c under realizing, combined with local selling inspired by relatively easy Liverpool cables and rather better private crop advices from some parts of the belt.

Buying on unfavorable features in the weather news, however, caused rallies of a few points in early trading. The volume of business tapered off toward the end of the first hour, prices holding fairly steady at net declines of 18 to 20 points.

Private cables said there had been general realizing in the Liverpool market with trading less active and a disposition to await further crop progress.

The early decline carried the market off to 21.96c for October, or about 28 to 35 points net lower on the active positions. There was considerable liquidation, as well as local and New Orleans selling, but the offerings seemed to taper off at this figure, and the market steadied on the outlook for further showers in the South.

SHARES TUMBLE AS LOAN RATE SOARS

NEW YORK, July 12.—Stock prices continued to drift lower today on selling inspired by the recent stiffening of money rates. Frequent attempts were made to rally the general list, but they fell flat, as all recoveries attracted a fresh outburst of offerings. Active industrials and rails dropped 1 to 8 points, and a few high priced specialties broke 10 to nearly 20 points.

Call money renewed at 7 per cent, as against 6 yesterday, and then advanced to 7½ as banks called $15,000,000, or more, in loans. Threatened with the loss of the ammunition of an abundant supply of credit which has made their operations possible, pools withdrew support from their favorites, and some cases threw large blocks of their holdings into the market. Meanwhile, "Bear" traders continued their hammering tactics against supposedly vulnerable issues.

Little or no attention was paid to the day's trade news. The rapidity of the recent decline undoubtedly had weakened many marginal accounts and caused widespread liquidation by frightened investors.

General Motors was the most active feature, breaking 7 points to 183½. One block of 11,200 shares changed hands at 188½ and another block of 10,000 shares at 185. Radio dipped from an early high of 167¾ to 162¼. U. S. Steel common was one of the few popular industrials to receive strong buying support.

Case Threshing broke 18 points, Indian Refining preferred and National Tea 12 each, Adams Express 10, Wright Aeronautical Corporation 8 and "Nickel Plate" common, Rossia Insurance, Midland Steel Products preferred, R. H. Macy and Kelly-Springfield 8 per cent preferred were hammered down 5 to 7 points.

Tobacco issues moved against the general trend on reports of impending stock split-ups, a good demand being noted for the American Tobacco issues and Reynolds Tobacco B.

Money Takes Wings

FEW who are left the proceeds of life insurance in cash invest it wisely or keep it long. The temptation is to spend it quickly. That is why so many women and children for whom life insurance was purchased as a protection find within a few years that the money has taken wings and flown away.

The wise plan in buying life insurance is to create a Trust to receive the proceeds of policies in order that the estate may be carefully invested and conserved for the real protection of those for whom it is intended.

Our Trust Officers will be pleased to give full particulars regarding Life Insurance Trusts, small or large.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THOSE who love Dickens have agreeable recollections of his descriptions of the old stage coaches. The coming of steam put an end to such picturesque modes of travel, but today we are seeing passenger transportation take to the open road again. Horses have been replaced with gasoline motors, rumbling coaches with luxurious buses. Even the old wayside inn may be reborn in its modern counterpart in stopping places for meals and over-night rests on the longer trips.

BUSES first became established as important modes of travel in our flat middle-western country and along the seaboards. The past two years, and particularly the last year, have seen the motor coach invade Pittsburgh for long-distance passenger travel. There are few points left in the United States which cannot be reached from Pittsburgh by bus. Operations are on regular schedules.

TICKETS can be purchased here to travel straight through to Los Angeles by several different routes. One line alone sends seven buses daily from here to Philadelphia and New York. These connect with other lines to Baltimore, Washington, Richmond and southern points. A northern line runs through Buffalo, making connections to Toronto and Quebec.

ONE bus operator estimates that 1,200 people a day leave Pittsburgh on the interstate lines and, counting the shorter systems, about 2,000 people a day travel from this city.

The bus rates average from 2¼ to 2½ cents a mile, compared with railroad rates averaging 3¼ cents a mile. The bus fare to New York is $9.50 for a single trip or $18.50 for a round trip. Los Angeles may be reached in five days and four nights for a fare of $58.50.

THE railroads and interurban cars throughout the country are finding that the bus lines are offering serious competition. This is particularly true on the short hauls. Long-distance travel by bus is rapidly growing, and it threatens to curtail railroad traffic in this field as well.

THERE is an element of injustice in bus development. The railroads, which must maintain costly rights of way and which are compelled to pay heavy taxes for this privilege of ownership, are being compelled to meet the competition of buses with no such charges. Railroad taxes go to build roads used by systems which are dipping heavily into the railroad gross revenue.

The railroads are belatedly fighting fire with fire. They are turning to the operation of their own bus lines as feeders for their regular rail routes.

AT PRESENT Pittsburgh bus operation is hampered by the lack of a central terminal. Trade rivalry between the systems has made the establishment of a co-operative terminal impossible, but the need for such a facility is generally recognized by the operators. They predict that eventually a terminal must be established, as has been done in many other cities.

THE projected town hall might be designed to harbor a bus terminal in its basement if the location chosen is at a convenient central point. What better first view of Pittsburgh could be given to travelers than a beautifully designed public building of this kind? The stranger to our city would find himself immediately confronted with the institution which would be the center of our industrial, artistic and social life.

THE inclusion of a bus terminal in the town hall building would be worth while as a convenience alone. It would greatly stimulate attendance at the activities of the town hall by out-of-town people.

THE booster spirit and boastful civic pride can easily be overdone. An excess of them can make a city ridiculous, but Pittsburgh has not been guilty of such a fault. Rather it has been too negligent about putting its best foot forward. The town hall will assist in doing this in a dignified manner.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Mellon on Chicago Rate Raise.

Commenting on criticism as to the manner in which the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rate was raised, Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon said, on his departure for Europe last night, that there was no significance whatsoever in the fact that the 5 per cent rate was put into effect at Chicago 10 days after the directors had voted on the matter. The explanation, according to Mr. Mellon, was that all the members of the Federal Reserve Board, excepting himself, were absent from Washington, most of them on vacations. The Chicago Reserve Bank directors had voted on the rediscount matter on June 29, but the 5 per cent rate was not put into effect until Tuesday of this week. New York financial circles not only criticised the method of the raise but also questioned the necessity of inaugurating a higher rate at this time. Extension of more drastic rediscount measures, some of the Eastern bankers think, will undoubtedly check business and have a directly opposite effect to that intended. The generally accepted idea of the restriction of credit in the current program is that the reserve authorities are endeavoring to bring liquidation of loans on securities market collateral. In his remarks to a Dow Jones reporter last night Mr. Mellon said, in effect, that the raise in rediscount rates would naturally have a temporary effect on business.

London Objects.

A Central News dispatch today quotes the London Financial News as follows:

"The advance to 5 per cent in the rediscount rate of the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank came as a surprise in well-informed banking circles. It can scarcely be justified as an attempt to check unsound speculation since there was no longer a trace of a boom in Wall street, was the view held in some circles."

Call Money, 8 Per Cent.

Further withdrawals from the money market today forced the call rate to 8 per cent from an opening rate of 7. This is the highest on call loans since the sudden bulge to 10 per cent two weeks ago, when the banks were preparing for the big July 1 settlements and window dressing in anticipation of the bank call which was issued as of June 30.

Under the company's charter rights to purchase new stock must first be offered to holders of both the common and preferred stocks unless this privilege has been specifically waived as in the case of the shares reserved for employes.

Big Car Order Placed.

The Argentine State Railways has placed an order for 2,200 freight cars, divided between the American Car and Foundry Company and the Middletown Car Company. Pennsylvania Railroad is making inquiries on the construction of up to 500 refrigerator cars of the so-called passenger type. These cars can be used in passenger trains for quick service. This inquiry is in addition to the 629 steel cars which were ordered early in the year, some of which have already been delivered. In steel circles the cost of the proposed new refrigerator equipment is estimated at around $5,000,000.

American Smelters.

It is believed in certain quarters that the long awaited splitup of American Smelting and Refining Company common stock is near at hand and might occur before the end of 1928, with the possibility of an increased return in dividend to common shareholders. The company is in strong liquid financial position, with current assets $89,926,505 at the end of 1927, compared with current liabilities of $18,378,958, or a ratio of nearly 5 to 1. A report is also current that Smelters plan to call the remaining $5,000,000 series B first mortgage gold 6s, due 1947, for redemption in October. In April this year $4,250,000 of this series was retired at 107½ and interest. This action would leave only series A 5s outstanding which are issued in amount of $38,341,400 also due in 1947.

To Split Tobacco Stocks.

There are 400,000 shares of common and 3,600,000 shares of common B outstanding, par value $25. There will be no par value of the new shares. It is expected the new stock will be placed on a $1.50 annual dividend basis, equal to $6 on the present shares which are on a regular basis of $5. In 1927 the company paid an extra of $1.50 on the present stock.

June Power Consumption.

Manufacturing opeartions in the United States in June were on a higher plane than a year ago, due chiefly to sustained activity in automobile production and in the metal industries grouup. It is shown in reports of consumption of electrical energy from 3,000 large manufacturing plants to Electrical World. The month showed a gain of 3.5 per cent. The seasonal drop in activity in June was less than normal.

LOCAL TRADING IS QUIET

The weakness in New York, occasioned by the 7 per cent call money opening and the fears of a raise in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate there, was not reflected to any noticeable extent on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today.

There was a little nervousness evident, however, and bidders were not aggressive. On the other hand, no great amount of stock was offered and the result was a fairly steady market for the trading specialties which have been leading the list recently. Westinghouse Air Brake's gain of a few days ago was entirely eliminated, due to withdrawal of bids at New York, and the stock was back again around 45, the price from which it started the little flurry following the announcement of some new train control orders recently placed.

Arkansas Gas was moderately active and held firm around the 7¼ price at which it has been selling for several weeks. The company's expansion program is not yet completed and traders favoring the stock contend that further news of favorable bearing on the stock will be forthcoming before fall.

DISPLAY SALE OF QUALITY CARS

Readers of the pages are familiar with our conservative policy of truthful advertising. We do not exaggerate when we say that prices have been cut $100 to $400 below the average reader's conception of MARKET value. With each purchase is a full guarantee for the buyer's benefit.

A good USED Buick is better than a cheap new car. New car buyers in the $500 to $1,000 class will profit from a visit during the sale period. To make it easy to purchase one of these truly fine cars, special terms will be offered.

"DRIVE YOUR OLD CAR IN FOR DOWN PAYMENT" will be our slogan.

COOK-COOS by Ted Cook

(Copyright, 1928.)

"Why is it," asks Lady Darfourth, "that American drama audiences insist on tramping out between acts?"

Ans.— —

To avoid listening to bad music.

Trouble with a lot of theater orchestras is that the violinist never falls asleep until he starts playing.

* * *

Composers ought to write in parts for the cello player's snores.

Snores, however, save the theaters money. Eliminate trombone players.

Embarrassing Moments

I spent two years writing what I considered the great American drama. Finally I got a producer to put it on. Imagine my embarrassment, on the opening night, to discover that not a line or a situation had been changed.

And never brought to mind,
'Tis likely the forgetter
Will be repaid in kind.

CAPT. HARRY DONCASTER made not the uncommon mistake of confounding capital with income; and his inheritance had refused at last to be made the sport of an unscrupulous cheque book. Then he began to borrow, which was crisis the second in his career. He took to borrowing in a direct manner, and came to crisis the second, as I have said. And to this gloomy boundary, I regret to say, Harry Doncaster had arrived at the period in question, although—

Steel Tonnage Increase Cheering Business News

The barometer of the steel industry, the report of the total tonnage of unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation, shows an increase for June over May and also an increase over June of last year. The gain for last month was 220,187 tons and there were 585,763 more tons on the books than there were at the same date a year ago.

The stimulation to business of the mills is explained in a rush of buyers to place orders before an increase of $1 a ton on several staple products became effective. An economist might say the increase of price was announced because a rush of business was foreseen—the oft-mentioned "law" of supply and demand in operation.

Whatever the explanation, it is cheering news that the mills received orders for more products than they turned out at the capacity on which they were operating. It means they must increase production if the rate of orders is maintained. That is the forecast of optimists and the hope of all.

Help to Keep Parks Clean By Removing Your Waste

There are receptacles in the parks in which those who are considerate place the litter they make. A picnic party has to put itself to but little trouble to roll into a parcel the papers and boxes in which food was brought to the park and place them where they belong. It takes but little time for each to do that, but when thousands fail to do it the result is an enormous task for park employes.

Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, has requested various organizations to spread the word that a little more thoughtfulness on the part of picnickers will go a long way in keeping the parks in a spick and span condition at all times. All will agree with him—that is all who have driven through a park on a Sunday evening when picnickers are departing and view the expanse of paper and other rubbish they leave behind.

Pittsburgh people are not naturally untidy. Doubtless they think it is part of the service of the park to clean up. It is to be hoped that they will respond willingly now that they know what is expected.

This Is for Ladies

Study the Leopard and Imitate Him.

DOTS ARE THE FASHION. HERE ARE PINHEAD AND POLKA DOTS.

Dots are the fashion in Paris, and every woman will want to know it.

The leopard cannot change HIS spots, poor thing, but the lady CAN change hers often—and does. For that matter, she may have dropped the "dot," or spot, fashion entirely by the time this is printed. However, we are doing our best to supply fashion news and keep up with the changes. Men can do no more.

These big dots, little dots and the small "confetti dots" in the small picture below are all the rage.

How often women change. Sometimes it is STRIPES, sometimes it is FLOWERS on a dress. Then, again, CHECKS are fashionable and plaids and, occasionally, dots come in.

Woman, for mysterious good reasons known only to Providence, is struggling to achieve some end in costume. Probably, a few thousand centuries hence, she will settle down, as she did in Greece years ago, and realize that the IMPORTANT things are her FACE, her beautiful FIGURE and especially what she carried inside of her head.

Just now, however, it is all OUTSIDE ADORNMENT.

Fancy clothes and FEW of them. Fancy shoes and MANY of them, paint, powder, lipstick, rouge.

But a wise Providence is back of it all. It is not for man to criticize, but to pay the bills as cheerfully as he can and ask himself patiently, "What next?"

THESE "CONFETTI DOTS" ARE CALLED 'ULTRA-CHIC

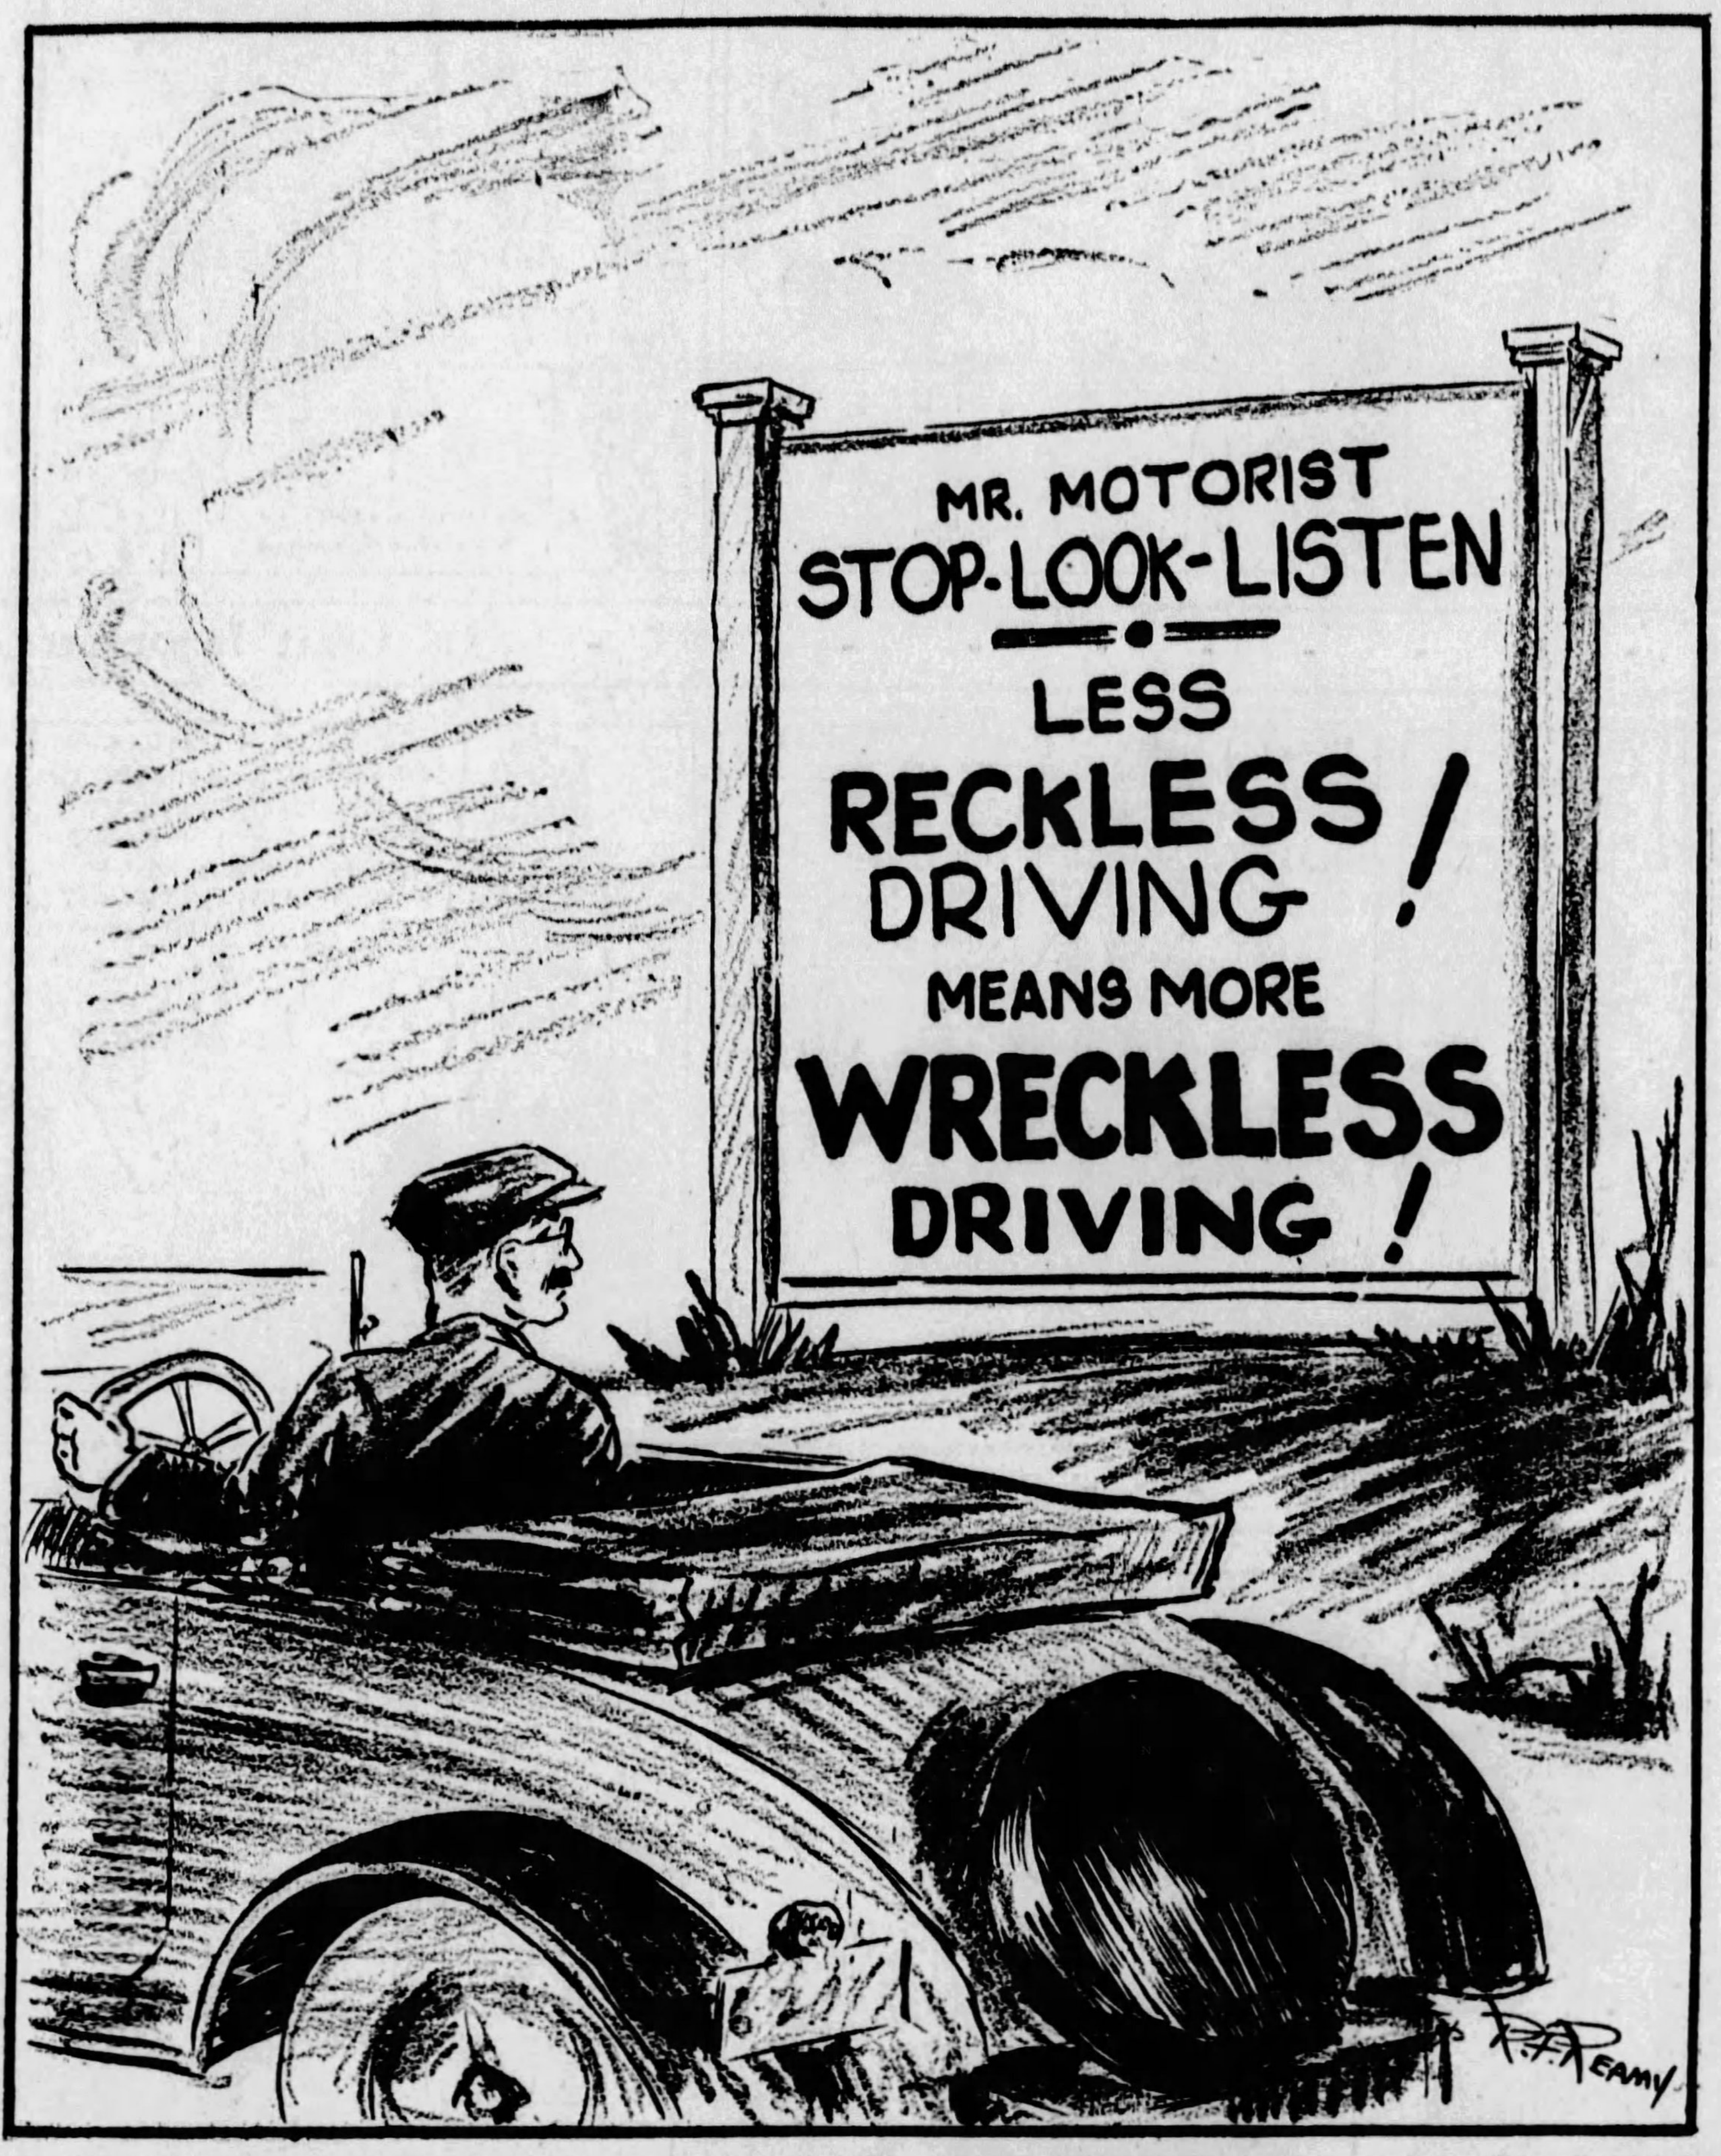
My! What a Difference a Letter Can Make



Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Magic Sugar Making

THE chemists surprise us every little while with a new "synthetic product," i. e., some imitation of or substance for a natural product, which they have succeeded in "putting together" (synthesis means that) by employing nature's elements in some way that nature herself had not thought of using, or not cared to use. In this manner man is beginning, (on a small scale as yet, to be sure), to become his own manufacturer of things for which during all the past thousands of years of human history he has depended solely on the bounty or the favor of nature.

The latest notable achievement of this kind is the making of synthetic sugar by two Swedish chemists. Professors A. Pictet and Hans Vogel. Science News says that chemists have been working in vain on this problem during the past 50 years. That shows the intensity of man's fondness for sweets, which perhaps equals his love of gold.

The problem was solved, as was to have been expected, by manipulating the atoms of the substances used. Ordinary sugar is made from sugar cane or sugar beets. It can be chemically "split" by the use of acids so as to form two different sugars, one of which is called glucose—which is usually made from corn—while the other is "fructose," which can be obtained from the Jerusalem artichoke. Now, the point was, given glucose and fructose to start with, how to put them together chemically so as to transform them into ordinary sugar, or sucrose. There was where the hitch occurred—the two would not combine as desired, notwithstanding the fact that they could be "split" from sucrose, in which nature had known how to combine them. The key was discovered by Prof. Pictet when he found that fructose exists in two forms identical in composition but differing simply in the arrangement of their atoms. By choosing a particular form of fructose, called the "gamma" form, he caused it to combine with an equal quantity of glucose, the combination product being the desired sucrose.

But this process is difficult and expensive, so that it gives no promise of the hills of sugar candy that children's imagination sometimes depict. To produce a single barber's pole candy stick in this way might cost a fortune. Science has triumphed, but not yet commerce. Nevertheless, the triumph is highly important because of the new possibilities that it opens up. From this beginning the history of such things warrants the hope that further experiments and discoveries on the same line may enable chemists to make a variety of new kinds of sugar, of varying degrees of sweetness and flavor, and that will be free from some of the objections that medical doctors find to nature-made sugar. A hint of the atomic magic practiced by Prof. Pictet may be given in this way:

To make the glucose and the fructose combine into sugar he joined to each molecule of glucose and fructose four molecules of acetic acid (which is practically vinegar), and when the desired produce was obtained he called in the molecules of alkali to dispose of the vinegar. Such things man has found out how to do by going down into the molecular sub-cellars of nature, which no microscope can magnify into visibility, though the cunning chemist can work there with plenty of mental elbow room.

Small Talk

YOU like to radiate good cheer. To make people happy is your aim.

To be the "life of the party" pleases you more than anything else.

And yet you wonder why people don't seem to take you seriously.

You feel that you are a thinker and that you have given study to some of the deeper subjects.

But in your daily conversations are not the little things of the moment the things that you talk about?

If you will aim to be the central figure in small talk, what do you expect from those who have listened to you?

Merely to have reasoning power and practical ideas which you never display is not enough to establish your reputation for wisdom and stability.

It pays to advertise.

You have constantly advertised your sense of humor.

Why not advertise your good sense by giving others the benefit of some of your really sensible deductions?

But first you want to be sure you are right in what you have to offer.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Obligation

LIFE is a puzzle for all to solve,
Each man as best he may.
Neither the years nor the tears absolve
Him from the part he must play.

One may be proud with the pride of kings,
One may be kind and meek,
Happy always in the humble things
Only the childlike seek.

Still they are working the puzzle out,
Solving it day by day,
Meeting the forces of stubborn doubt,
Driving fears' hosts away.

Surely as worlds on their way revolve,
There is a task for you;
Neither the years nor the tears absolve
Man from the work he must do.

Resourceful

EDWARD BUSH, 15, Brooklyn, is a Boy Scout. He learned swimming and life-saving methods last summer in the Scout camp at Bear Mountain.

So, when a woman tried to drown herself after a quarrel with her husband, and grown men on the Bay Ridge sea wall were watching her struggles and shouting for help, but not helping Edward arrived on the run, hopped in and brought the lady safely to shore.

Which is a sample of what Boy Scouting does for boys. Is your boy a Scout?

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

WELL, a girl that ain't married has got to keep a lookout, of course, or she might miss something. She never can tell but what some guy might want to marry her, and the boys are none too clear about anything any more, so the girl has got to be watching and not muffing anything.

So there was a real pretty college girl watching a polo game, and the guy that took her there was a member of one of the teams, but he wasn't playing that day. He had been awful nice to her, so Sally just naturally was waiting for anything that might happen to kinda stimulate a proposal.

Well, as they were setting and watching the players, the guy says to Sally, "See that guy over there, just coming up? He's a-going to be our best man pretty soon."

"Well, all right," she says.

"All right what?"

"Why, you got a funny way of putting it, but I suppose if you've got the best man all picked out your intentions must be serious. Yes, it's all right with me."

And that's how that guy got hooked.

Excuse After Losing

"AS a matter of fact, Jones played a rattling good game, but—well, there was just one point, perhaps, that rather assisted him. Just after my first service, a bee flew into my eye. I hate making a fuss, or drawing attention to these things on the court—it's such jolly bad form, you know—so I had to let the blighter stay in till the set was over. Of course, it was a bit uncomfortable, and I could only see out of one eye—and that was watering. But, I must say, Jones played a rattling good game. Rattling good."

True to His Trade

THE young plumber had proposed to the girl and had been accepted. Several hours later they parted and he went home.

At 3 o'clock in the morning a loud ringing of the front-door bell of the girl's house was heard. Her father, roused from slumber, went to a window and, sticking out his head, inquired who was there.

"It's John," said a voice from below. "I asked Agnes to marry me and she said she would, but I forgot to kiss her."

Tit For Tat

A SUPERBLY clad young man entered a certain village inn with his dog.

The dog was a splendid animal and attracted a great deal of attention amongst the other customers present.

One man ventured to ask what kind of dog it was.

The owner, after looking his questioner insolently up and down, replied:

"It's a cross between an Irishman and an ape, if you want to know."

"Oh, indade!" retorted the other. "Why, then, it must be related to the pair of us, young sorr!"

Going Up

CUSTOMER (buying a dog): "How much for this big dog?"

"Five dollars."

"And for this smaller one?"

"Ten dollars."

"And this little one?"

"Fifteen dollars."

"And this tiny one?"

"Twenty dollars."

"Heavens! And however much if I don't buy a dog at all?"

New York Day by Day

by O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 12.—The utter boredom of a so-called smart crowd in New York is a social phenomenon quite unexplainable to the casual onlooker parked behind a palm and filled with an eye-bulging curiosity. Expected gaiety merely crystalizes into a luxurious yawn.

One wonders why these people, rated as those "who belong," go out in public at all. The dispirited manner is especially marked in cases. They enter in the hushed fashion of those who have come to take a last look at the remains. There is not a smile in a train load.

They sit at the tables in such a tight-lipped silence that one longs for what vaudeville terms "a belly laugh." A languid hand extended to some passing acquaintance appears to be the only show of activity. They do not talk. They merely indulge in monosyllabic murmur.

Even the waiters seem to be touched by the melancholy. You would not be greatly surprised if they cried a little in your soup. While this seeming prostration is largely a pose, there is little doubt most of them are affected by the tedium of the squirrel in the revolving cage.

In country boy fashion I have read all my life of "society's dizzy whirl." A close-up reveals it as not even a half turn. It is a view of a crowd of mostly uninteresting people nibbling at expensive food and staring in the detached manner of a stage Ophelia.

Once in a while one of those "How have you b-e-e-n?" gushers prances into the room, but you can see he is a head-ache. The crowd wants to wallow in its ennui. Their noticeable lack of concession to ordinary manners has long been a topic among the Emily Post alumnae.

Dowagers do not hesitate to hoist an aristocratic lorgnette rudely to inspect the stranger from Sinking Springs. Flip debutantes take a delight in a public hitch of the stocking or a free hand smear of rouge and otherwise showing off for hoi polloi.

It is fair to say New York society class consciousness is in the minority. There is a stratum in every typ of humanity that predicates the show off. But there are members of New York's society the public never sees. And perhaps it is just as well.

* * *

Indeed there is a section of the "400" referred to as "cafe society." They flit from cafe to cafe and night club to night club. The austere members of aristocracy are rarely seen in cafes.

Among the extreme upper crust social mingling is limited. There are few intimates outside of the immediate family and their lives are devoted largely to charity. A notable example of a younger matron upholding this social quality is Mrs. Vincent Astor, who is seldom seen in public save at charity events, where she is among the patronesses.

Another bit of gossip from the social realm concerns several debutante church weddings that were delayed from a half hour to an hour the last year as the result of pre-ceremony cocktail parties indulged by ushers, bridesmaids, maids of honor, best men and other attendants. At one a substitute best man had to be rushed into service at the last moment, the real best man having toppled from his auto at the church curb and folded up like an accordion.

Class distinction among society debutantes is so pronounced in New York they are in three grades A, B, C—and are thus listed by society editors.

* * *

Personal social activities in grade Z at the moment concern a chili engagement on West Forty-ninth street, where my prominence always gets me the best stool. And I'm always a card in chop suey joints.

Water-Tight Compartments

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Every once in a while we hear a man say, "Business is business," or that he follows "art for art's sake," or that he as a scientist cares only for the truth, not for its practical results, and so on. But the fact is humanity is not put up in water-tight compartments.

Everything you do affects all parts of your nature.

What you do in business reflects on your art, what you do in art colors your business, and what you think in religion has much to do with your scientific conclusions. Mankind is one, one organic whole, and its various departments of activity have merely been listed for convenient reference. They do not exist in reality.

If your religion is ugly and cruel your business will be immoral.

If your business is heartless and vindictive your whole life will show it.

The scientist must pay some attention to the practical bearings of his investigations, for it would be foolish for him to spend his whole life on investigating some perfectly useless matter.

Business must be beautiful. Art in some way must rest upon a business basis.

A man cannot have his whole head submerged in literature; he must have sense enough to market his wares.

The beautiful works of art of past generations had their influence upon believers in religion, and religion is what it is owing to a thousand other causes within itself.

Much recent art shows contempt for any but aesthetic values. Such art is transient, and will give place to a greater art in which beauty of thought and expression will confer enlarged values.

The total of all values is what counts.

This result can be achieved, not by preaching in art nor by making science "practical," but by universal education in values so that artist, business man or scientist will express himself in synthesis of all values.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

SHE was a pretty thing, with a figure that would make any sane man turn around for another glimpse. She wanted a driver's license in New York. She had driven a car for 15 years, but never bothered about the license, which is not so different from the idea men have on the subject.

How come she wanted one?

Well, she got arrested for violating an ordinance, and it cost her $7.

The young lady applied for the license after getting a lot of first-class information on the subject of getting one, and she gave the officer who accompanied her on the "test" drive her sweetest smile.

My, my! These "test" drivers must have a lot of fun!

She had been told by others that the surest way to get a license was to leave a $5 bill on the seat of the car. Then not to bother about where it went. Of course she didn't know, and neither do I. She didn't do it. This is what she did:

"My, but you look handsomely good-natured," she said to the test officer, as he climbed into her car.

"Well," sezze, sizing her up, and looked pleased withal, "I believe in keeping happy. That's the way to live."

"Ah, you have been reading Omar Khayyam," said the girl, looking like the rogue she was.

"Yeh," said the officer, "I have read a few of his books."

Getting a bit nervous, the lady ran her car up on the curb. A thing she hadn't done in years, but the officer pretended not to notice. A nice fellow, I say.

Before the drive ended he asked: "What do you do for a living?" She explained her business and promised to send him a circular so he could understand better. He certainly would like that!

"I wonder," said the smart girl, "if you would buy me a couple of cigars?"

"I sure would!" said the officer, in whom hope still ran high.

She gave him a $5 bill and without so much looking at it, he shoved it into his pocket. She got his name and address so she could send him the circular.

Now, no woman who did that would give her name and address! We may not be the weaker, but we are the smarter sex.

"I didn't know," said the lady, "whether or not you would take it?"

"Certainly, I'd be a fool if I didn't," said the officer, and the lady agreed.

That's the lovely part of ladies in business, they know when to agree with the men. (Wives, please note.)

"And I feel," said the lady, when she told about it, "that I am as much to blame as he was, because I gave him the money. But I'm wondering, considering what I make, and how hard I work, how many people want licenses and how easy it is to go driving these summer afternoons, if they ever have lady test officers!"
